

MORE SPECIES FOUND AT MAMMOTH SITE

Scientists discovered several Ice Age animals west of Cody

BY MARK DAVIS
Tribune Staff Writer

Scientists rushed to the Buffalo Bill Reservoir this spring to recover the remains of a Columbian mammoth, but they wound up also finding evidence of four other species from the Ice Age.

Bones and bone fragments found at the bottom of the reservoir west of Cody belonged to a Pleistocene-era horse, bison, camel, and a small artiodactyl creature that's similar to a deer, the Office of the Wyoming Archaeologist says. They all date back many thousands of years to the Ice Age — a geological epoch which lasted from about 2,588,000 to 11,700 years ago.

The discovery of the additional species was a welcome surprise, said Wyoming State Archaeologist Greg Pierce, whose team just wrapped up the field-study season and will be heading back to the lab to research recent discoveries.

Pierce and others hustled to the Buffalo Bill Reservoir in April after the remains of a mammoth were exposed by low water on the South Fork side of the reservoir, working quickly before water levels rose. It's been dubbed the Marquette mammoth, named after the small town that was flooded by the creation of the reservoir.

Months after salvaging the remains, scientists are still unsure how long the massive animal rested on the shores of the Shoshone River. Samples of collagen sent to the Accelerator Mass Spectrometry Lab at the University of Arizona for carbon dating tests to determine an approximate age have failed so far, Pierce said. The degradation of the remains sped up as the bones were exposed to water and air, he said.

"We're just trying to re-group," Pierce said. "We were really hoping to get a date from the first [test], but not so much."

There are several options to continue looking for a date, which is important in deciding whether the mammoth died of natural causes, including pre-date by another animal, or if the mammoth was eaten by humans sometime within the past 14,000 years.

"The problem is you're paying every time you try to get a date," Pierce said.

COUNTY SHERIFF AGAIN CONSIDERS ACCEPTING INMATES FROM MONTANA

Jail less crowded

BY CJ BAKER
Tribune Editor

With the Park County Detention Center no longer packed with inmates, county officials are again entertaining the idea of possibly housing inmates from Carbon County, Montana.

"It's something we can start looking at for revenue, I think," Park County Sheriff Scott Steward told commissioners at an Aug. 7 meeting.

Carbon County — which encompasses Red Lodge, Bridger, Joliet, Fromberg, Belfry and several other small communities in southern Montana — does not have a jail, and it's been looking for a more affordable place to house its inmates for years. Carbon County commissioners approached their Park County counterparts with the request back in 2014, but Wyoming Attorney General Peter Michael advised Park County that, under state law, it could not accept out-of-state prisoners. Wyoming legislators changed that law last year, opening the door to Montana inmates. At that point, however, the Cody jail was running full.

"I wouldn't even take one [person from Carbon County] at this point," Steward said in

Enrollment, cybersecurity highlight State of the College address

BY MIKE BUHLER
Tribune Community Editor

Boosting enrollment and enhancing cybersecurity were two of Northwest College President Stefani Hicswa's major points of focus in her State of the College address to NWC employees and trustees last week.

Hicswa acknowledged that NWC enrollment is down, which she said could be due in part to enrollment also dipping in area high schools.

However, the college president is not conceding the fight to increase enrollment. "Student success is key," Hicswa said. "We are focused on retention and completion initiatives to ensure that students who start here complete their degree."

One way NWC is looking to reverse its enrollment decline is by reaching out to more adult learners and part-time students.

"We increased our advertising to promote our 'not too late to register' message and the new Trapper Adult Learner Scholarship," Hicswa said.

STEFANI HICSWA

She said NWC has also revised its scholarship requirements so they're available to those students.

"We hope to provide better access for people who may not have otherwise been able to afford college or are too busy with family and other commitments to go full-time," Hicswa said.

She also pointed out that the current funding allocation model puts less of an emphasis on full-time enrollment and more on retention and completion when it comes to students.

"The mission of community colleges is to ensure access to post-secondary educational opportunities," Hicswa said. "We want adult students to know this is a great time to finish college or to train for a new

Boy attacked, injured by bear in Yellowstone

A 10-year-old boy from Washington state was reportedly attacked and injured by a grizzly bear in Yellowstone National Park Thursday morning.

Park officials say the boy and his family were a half-mile up the Divide Trail, southeast of Old Faithful, when a female grizzly charged out of vegetation toward the four family members. The boy ran away and the bear chased after him, reportedly knocking the child to the ground.

The boy's parents then deployed bear spray about 5 feet from the bruin's face and "the bear shook its head and left the area," Yellowstone officials said in a news release. The incident occurred around 10 a.m. The boy suffered an injured wrist, puncture wounds to his back and wounds around his rear end, the release said. After walking back to the trailhead, the family took the boy to the Old Faithful area. He was later transferred to a hospital in Big Sky, Montana.

'This incident could have been more serious.'

Law enforcement and bear management staff responded immediately to the area. From tracks and other indications at the scene, park officials concluded that the grizzly appeared to have been foraging near the trail with at least one of her cubs.

Last-minute write-in campaign against Rep. Laursen drew perhaps 5 percent of the vote

BY CJ BAKER
Tribune Editor

Although he didn't know it until days later, state Rep. Dan Laursen, R-Powell, faced a challenger in last week's election.

Powell resident Ronn Smith ran a write-in campaign in the Republican primary, though "it was definitely a last-minute, one might even say frivolous, act," he said.

It was just two days before the election, at an Aug. 19 meeting of the group Wyoming Rising-Northwest, that Smith heard complaints about Laursen running unopposed in the Republican primary. "I was not planning to run for the state House, nor did I plan to campaign, but was persuaded that some people wanted a choice," Smith explained. "So I allowed my name to be put out there for that purpose."

Wyoming Rising encouraged its members to vote for Smith — endorsing him on the group's website — but he didn't do any campaigning. And while he was willing to serve in the Legislature, the self-described realist wasn't expecting to win.

Laursen wound up receiving 1,642 votes, nearly 95 percent of those cast. Another 89 people (about 5.1 percent) wrote-in another choice and, presumably, most of them jotted down Smith's name. Another 339 people left their ballots blank on the House District 25 race.

"I sure appreciate the people voting me in again, obviously, although there wasn't a candidate" on the ballot in opposition, said Laursen. "I think I've done a good job."

When a candidate is unopposed, "you never know if it's something where somebody doesn't want the job or if they think you're doing good the next test is likely to turn up positive for a date. The office isn't rolling in cash and is frugal at every step, he said. The office is charged about $100 for a negative test and about $500 for positive. The Wyoming Society of Professional Archaeologists donated money for the first test.

Cost is not the only problem, either. Carbon dating is a destructive process and you have to destroy part of the bone to send samples for collagen tests. It's a small part of a bone, but considering archaeologists on the scene meticulously collected minuscule pieces sifted from the sand and dirt around the skeletal remains — small enough to require checking with a microscope — they don't want to give up any more evidence than is necessary.

"Now we're going back to the Bureau of Reclamation and figure out the next step," Pierce said. "We don't want to throw good money after bad."

The team would like to have a large piece of femur for the test material, but that part of the mammoth was not found at the site. As a result, they're limited to the vertebral column, dorsal spines and a couple ribs. It will be at least another two months after sending in the second bone sample before the team would get an estimated date.

"We took [the test sample] from a piece that was relatively thick and in decent shape. We thought we'd be OK," Pierce said.

There are other options, but each one comes with complications. The team could test the enamel from the Marquette mammoth's molar, found intact at the site, but those tests can be off by thousands of years. Scientists need to pin down a date of younger than 14,000 years for a chance the site is cultural rather than paleontological — being the remains of a rib dinner rather than a natural death.

Marieka Arksey, collections manager for the University of Wyoming Archaeological Repository, and Pierce are directing a special independent study class at UW this semester. High-level undergrads and graduate students will take the semester to comb through evidence collected. Should the team find evidence of human-influenced mortality — including charred bones or scrapes — the Marquette mammoth site would be one of less than 20 such sites ever discovered; three of those sites have been discovered in Wyoming.

If cultural evidence is found, it's likely the team will return to the reservoir to dig for more evidence. The site was secured under riprap and scree and is currently many feet under water in the reservoir. The Bureau of Reclamation owns the site, which lies within Buffalo Bill State Park.

'We're just trying to regroup. We were really hoping to get a date from the first [test], but not so much.'

Campaign: Smith not planning to continue campaign

enough," Laursen said. "But ... you hope you're voting the way people want you to."

He's seeking his third two-year term in the House.

Had Smith run as a Democrat, he would have needed just 25 write-in votes to qualify for a spot on the general election ballot and face off with Laursen in November.

However, Smith switched his party affiliation from Democrat to Republican to vote in the contested primary races on the GOP side. Because Smith was registered as a Republican at the time of the primary, he had to run as one, which meant the only way his campaign would advance was if he got more votes than Laursen.

"Sometimes, the Democrats, there just aren't any viable choices, so you have to play the game," he said.

Most of the people at Wyoming Rising's meeting similarly appeared to be preparing to switch to Republican this election, he said.

A mechanical engineer and an adjunct math instructor at Northwest College, Smith moved to Powell two years ago from Sheridan. Before a health emergency last year, Smith was set to serve on the City of Powell's Planning and Zoning Committee, which "would probably be a better place to start than the Legislature," he said, saying that "nobody [in Powell] knows who I am."

"There weren't any burning issues that I thought the Legislature was headed in the wrong direction or anything like that," he added, "although I do think in Wyoming in general, we need more balance."

By that, Smith said he means more balance between Democrats and Republicans and between moderate and more conservative Republicans. He thinks it's important to govern from the center to build consensus; while Wyoming is better off than most states and has "a semblance of balance," the state "always seems to be tipping right," he said.

Smith thinks he would be capable of serving in the Legislature, but "I'm not suggesting that Dan Laursen is not a good legislator also," he said.

Smith is not planning to continue his write-in campaign to November's general election, where Laursen will again have no challengers on the ballot.

Laursen already has plans for the 2018 Legislative session, planning to re-introduce several bills to: institute work requirements for able-bodied Medicaid recipients, make improvements to the One Call of Wyoming utility-locating service and call for a U.S. Constitutional Convention where delegates could propose amendments to "impose fiscal restraints on the federal government, limit its power and jurisdiction and impose term limits."

Laursen also intends to bring back legislation that would permanently put Wyoming on Daylight Saving Time.

"That will stir people up," he predicted. "I just want them to stop changing the clock; I don't care which way you pick."

In the meantime, Laursen has interim committee meetings coming up, including an Agriculture, State and Public Lands and Water Resources meeting set for Sept. 27-28 at Northwest College.

"I'm learning a lot," Laursen said of his time in the Legislature. "But I sure appreciate everybody letting me go down there and speak for them."

You are loved and missed so much.
— Your loving family

If I Knew

If I knew it would be the last time
That I'd see you fall asleep,
I would tuck you in more tightly
And pray the Lord, your soul to keep.

If I knew it would be the last time
That I see you walk out the door,
I would give you a hug and a kiss
And call you back for one more.

If I knew it would be the last time
I'd hear your voice lifted up in praise,
I would videotape each action & word,
So I could play them back day after day.

If I knew it would be the last time,
I could spare an extra minute

To stop and say 'I love you,'
Instead of assuming you would know
I do.

If I knew it would be the last time
I would be there to share your day,
Well I'm sure you'll have so many more,
So I can let just this one slip away.

For surely there's always tomorrow
To make up for an oversight,
And we always get a second chance
To make everything just right.

There will always be another day
To say 'I love you,' and certainly There's another chance
To say our "Anything I can do?"

But just in case I might be wrong,
And today is all I get,

I'd like to say how much I love you
And I hope we never forget.

Tomorrow is not promised to anyone,
Young or old alike,
And today may be the last chance
You get to hold your loved one tight.
So if you're waiting for tomorrow,
Why not do it today?
For if tomorrow never comes,
You'll surely regret the day.

That you didn't take that extra time
For a smile, a hug, or a kiss
And you were too busy to grant someone,
What turned out to be their one last wish.

So hold your loved ones close today,
And whisper in their ear,
Tell them how much you love them
And that you'll always hold them
dear.

Take time to say, "I'm sorry,"
"Please forgive me," "Thank you," or "It's okay"
And if tomorrow never comes,
You'll have no regrets about today.

Crews to recover sunken boat from Bighorn Lake next month

Officials are still sharing few details about an Aug. 11 boating accident that killed three Billings residents and injured another at Bighorn Lake.

"The investigation continues," Christy Fleming, a spokesperson for Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area, said last week, adding that, "Details of the accident will be released pending the completion of the investigation."

Officials plan to retrieve the remains of the boat in September.

Hazardous material booms and marking buoys have been placed at the site, which is located about a half-dozen miles south of Yellowtail Dam. The park is asking boaters to stay at least 50 yards or 150 feet from the booms so the equipment can properly capture any fluids that may leak from the boat.

"The area is being monitored daily," Fleming said.

The crash occurred shortly before 9:30 p.m. on Aug. 11. One man, 63-year-old Robert Ludwick, was injured and Tammy Scoville, 59, Nathan Kelley, 36, and Christian Scoville, 35, were killed. It took search crews several days to recover their bodies, using advanced sonar and a remote-controlled underwater vehicle to locate the remains of the boat and two of the victims.

"I would like to thank the entire search team, our fellow agencies, and local businesses for coming out to help with the search efforts," said Bighorn Canyon Superintendent Mike Tranel. "While the circumstances were very unfortunate, our search team did a great job in responding to this incident, and I believe it's helpful to the families to have been able to find and recover all of the bodies."

Chris Valdez, the incident commander for the search efforts, called it an honor to work for the victims' families.

"Our team was glad to give the families peace," Valdez said. "The collaboration of the different park teams, volunteer organizations and agencies was instrumental in making this a successful operation."

Anyone with information about the accident is asked to call or text the National Park Service Investigative Services Branch at 1-888-653-0009 or email them at nps_isb@nps.gov.

Jail:

early 2017, as the population in the 106-bed facility spiked to a high of 99 inmates. Thanks to a busy first part of the year, the Park County Detention Center was the fullest it's ever been in 2017, hosting an average of 72 inmates. That broke the jail's prior high-water mark of 68 inmates, set in 2016, and continued an upward trend.

Since that time, however, the inmate population has dropped back down. Over the past year, sheriff's records show the jail has been averaging right around 59 inmates — in line with the 10-year average. That's why Steward is again willing to consider renting out space in the detention center to Carbon County, Montana.

"I think we can sit down and work something out on that — right now, anyway," he said at the Park County Commission's Aug. 7 meeting.

Steward indicated the county might need to be particular about which inmates it accepts — such as perhaps not taking sex offenders or other inmates who have to be kept out of the general population.

"We'd have to review their classification — and there's just some we wouldn't be able to take at certain times," the sheriff said.

He indicated Park County might also need to include contingencies for moving out Carbon County inmates if the jail starts filling up again. Steward said the jail normally sees gradual, rather than sudden, increases and generally gets fuller on weekends. However, bookings can also be unpredictable: from mid-morning on Aug. 9 to the early morning hours of Aug. 10 — a roughly 16-hour span — officers with the Powell and Cody police departments and the sheriff's office arrested 10 people. That temporarily bumped the population up to 69.

As of Monday afternoon, the jail was back down to a total of 59 people.

Carbon County commissioners have indicated they might want space for six to 12 inmates, said Park County Commission Chairman Loren Grosskopf.

"Twelve, I would say, would be a push for us," Steward said.

"You just got to leave room for yourself," agreed Commissioner Jake Fulkerson.

Beyond determining how many and which inmates that the Cody jail could take, Park County leaders also need to determine what rate they would charge Carbon County. Steward mentioned a possible fee of $65 per day, which, for six inmates, would mean roughly $140,000 in revenue over the course of the year. The sheriff has said that he would not incur many costs to handle the extra inmates.

Homesteader's Rowene Weems stepping down

After 20 years as curator-executive director of the Homesteader Museum in Powell, Rowene Weems is ready to pass the torch.

She submitted her letter of resignation to the Park County Museum Board Thursday, saying it is time to move on. Weems said she is ready to retire and enjoy creative pursuits, travel and volunteering. She is not moving from Powell.

"My vision and my focus for 20 years was for the museum to be a vibrant center for our community, our visitors and our state, and to keep it alive for the next generations,"

Weems said. "The community has been wonderfully supportive along the way."

Homesteader Museum Board president Steve Bailey said Weems will be difficult to replace.

"Rowene has been the force that has taken a collection of historical objects and returned them to life for our generation to appreciate the dedication and sacrifices our ancestors made," Bailey said. "She has the eyes of an artist combined with ability to tell a story that young and old can enjoy. I will miss her dedication at the museum."

Weems gave six weeks notice and plans to remain at the helm of the Homesteader Museum until Oct. 4.

Personnel at the Homesteader Museum and the Park County Archives are county government employees, overseen by a volunteer board appointed by the county commissioners.

Members of the Park County Museum Board, who will direct the process of replacing Weems, include chairman Terry Hinkle of Cody, Dakota Russell of the Heart Mountain Interpretive Center, Del Barton and Astrid Northrup of Powell and Geri Hockhalter of Cody.

Wyoming unemployment rises slightly in July

The Research and Planning section of the Wyoming Department of Workforce Services reports that the state's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate increased slightly from 3.7 percent in June to 3.8 percent in July. It was not a statistically significant change.

Wyoming's labor force, which is the sum of employed and unemployed individuals, fell by 5,984 people, or 2 percent, from July 2017 to July 2018. A decreasing labor force suggests people may be moving to other states or giving up their job search.

From June to July, most county unemployment rates followed their normal seasonal pattern and decreased, including Park County, which dropped half a percentage point to 3.3 percent. Unemployment rates often fall in July as seasonal job gains are seen in leisure and hospitality, construction, professional and business services, and other sectors.

Park County was among the largest decreases in unemployment, along with Hot Springs (down from 3.9 percent to 3.3 percent) and Teton (down from 2.4 percent to 1.9 percent). Teton County had the lowest unemployment rate.

From July 2017 to July 2018, unemployment rates increased in 15 counties and decreased or remained unchanged in eight counties. The largest increases were seen in Albany (up from 2.9 percent to 3.9 percent), Goshen (up from 3 percent to 3.9 percent), and Big Horn (up from 3.6 percent to 4.2 percent) counties. Fremont County had the highest unemployment rate at 5.1 percent, with Big Horn County's 4.2 percent rate ranking as No. 3.

Unemployment rates fell in Converse (down from 4.3 percent to 3.7 percent), Campbell (down from 4.6 percent to 4.1 percent), Natrona (down from 4.8 percent to 4.4 percent), and Sweetwater (down from 4.4 percent to 4.1 percent) counties.

Total non-farm employment (not seasonally adjusted and measured by place of work) rose significantly from 288,300 in July 2017 to 296,600 in July 2018, an increase of 8,300 jobs (or 2.9 percent).

August's employment figures will be released in late September.

to search for the bear since this incident was a surprise encounter with a female grizzly bear defending its cub," Yellowstone officials said in a Friday update.

The Divide Trail and nearby Spring Creek Trail have been temporarily closed while officials inspect them for recent bear activity.

"This incident could have been more serious. We applaud the family for traveling in a group, carrying bear spray and knowing how to effectively use it during their emergency," said Yellowstone National Park Deputy Superintendent Pat Kenney. "We wish their son a full recovery from his injuries."

In the release, Yellowstone officials noted that bears can be found in any part of the park, "from the deepest backcountry to the boardwalks around Old Faithful."

"Please prepare for bear encounters no matter where you go. Reduce your risk of a bear encounter by carrying bear spray. Be alert, make noise, hike in groups of three or more, do not run if you encounter a bear and stand your ground if charged by a bear," the release advised.

Thursday's incident marked the first reported bear attack in the park since 2015. Yellowstone averages about one bear attack per year, park officials said.

POWELL TRIBUNE

IN OUR OPINION

In appreciation of candidates who take the high road

In an age of seemingly endless political bickering, name-calling and worse, calls for civility have become increasingly common in America — and rightfully so.

During a Thursday night panel discussion at the University of Wyoming, former U.S. Sen. Al Simpson, a Republican, and former Wyoming Gov. Mike Sullivan, a Democrat, once again spoke on the topic of civility. As recounted by the Laramie Boomerang, Simpson told the audience that discussions about civility go well until someone mentions Republican President Donald Trump or Democratic U.S. Sen. Elizabeth Warren — then it ends in chaos.

That seems especially true for interactions on social media, which can quickly turn ugly as conservatives and liberals often relish in disparaging the opposing side.

It's certainly easy to find examples of incivility in America today. But what about moments of kindness, courtesy and respect, even among political opponents?

In last week's primary election, we saw civility on display in a local race that ended with the defeat of a longtime legislator.

Sen. Ray Peterson, R-Cowley, lost his Senate District 19 seat to R.J. Kost of Powell after serving in the Wyoming Legislature for 13 years. On the morning following the election, Peterson spoke highly of Kost, saying he has integrity and will do a good job in Cheyenne.

"I'm comfortable with giving that seat [to him] and saying, you know, we've got a good man down there that will represent us," Peterson told the Tribune.

Kost similarly commended the senator for his dedication, saying he has the "utmost respect" for Peterson and his service.

During the primary race, it was clear that Peterson and Kost had serious disagreements on policy, but it was refreshing and rare to see political opponents speak so highly of one another. We can only wish more politicians follow suit.

On the topic of civility, we'd be remiss not to take a moment to recognize the late Sen. John McCain, who died on Saturday at the age of 81. The Republican will be remembered as a war hero, a maverick senator and a political giant. He'll also be remembered for how he treated others, including his opponents.

In October 2008 — just a month before the presidential election — McCain famously defended his rival Barack Obama on the campaign trail. At a town hall meeting in Minnesota, audience members called Obama a liar, a terrorist and an Arab.

McCain countered the angry crowd, calling Obama "a decent family man [and] citizen." McCain told his supporters he would be respectful and that he admired Obama, according to Politico.

As the crowd boomed, McCain said, "I don't mean that has to reduce your ferocity. I just mean to say you have to be respectful."

Political divisions in this country have only worsened since McCain ran against Obama 10 years ago. But Americans should take McCain's words to heart, especially in today's political climate: Be respectful.

Serving area in the Senate was an honor

Dear Editor:

It has been an honor to serve the great people of Senate District 19 for the past 13 years. I have appreciated your support and help in representing this area. As the campaign signs come down and the political ads disappear, we can get back to our normal lives. I will always be grateful for our process of how we elect our representative government and certainly commend R.J. Kost for his clean and solid campaign. He is a man of integrity and he will do a great job in Cheyenne for us — and I'm hopeful that we can all support him, as you have supported me over the years.

This is not the way I had hoped to close my 27 years of public service, but certainly respect the process and look forward to new challenges.

I never got the opportunity to thank my wonderful wife and family that supported me over the years: Cresta has been my solid anchor at home as she spent many hours, days and nights alone as I served in Cheyenne. Thank you, Cresta.

To those that voted for me, thank you, and for those that did not, my wife thanks you. It has been a wonderful experience for me and I have learned so much over the years. I will miss being directly involved in decisions, but will miss most of all the relationships of other legislators, leaders and constituents here at home. We have some great people here and I've enjoyed our associations. Thank you once again for allowing me to serve you as your state senator.

May God be with our local, state and federal leaders in those decisions that affect each of us, and may God continue to bless this state and this place we call home.

State Sen. Ray Peterson

Sins of the father?

How far is too far when it comes to punishing people for making inappropriate remarks?

We might have gotten our answer on Friday, when Lilly Diabetes pulled its sponsorship of Conor Daly's race car in a NASCAR Xfinity race at Road America — not because of something Daly said, but because his father Derek made a racially insensitive remark in the 1980s that only came to light recently.

Lilly justified revoking Conor Daly's sponsorship in a statement, saying, "Unfortunately, the comments that surfaced this week by Derek Daly distract from this focus [of raising awareness for treatment options and resources for those with diabetes], so we have made the decision that Lilly Diabetes will no longer run the No. 6 at Road America this weekend."

I wish I was making this up. But I'm not.

I'm not saying that it is OK for people to make racist or inappropriate remarks, especially on social media. Security guard Mike Dargy Jr. lost his job last week after he went to the Buzzard Beach bar in Kansas City, Missouri, where he ordered a drink he called a "Trayvon Martini" from African-American bartender Alobar Bandaloo.

As if the reference to Trayvon Martin, a black teen who was shot to death in Florida in 2012 wasn't dubious enough, Dargy made things worse when he said the martini should include watermelon juice and one shot of vodka, because "it only [took] one shot to put him [Martin] down!" Bandaloo shared his story on Facebook and Dargy was out of work just a few days later.

I'm not arguing against Dargy's termination — what he said was reprehensible and I'm probably far from the only person who would feel uneasy about a person with that kind of prejudice carrying a firearm while on the job. However, there is a big difference between Dargy's case and Conor Daly's — Dargy is being punished for his own transgressions, while Conor Daly is being punished for his father using the n-word three decades ago.

Even in an era of increased political correctness, it's hard to look at Conor Daly's case and think his "punishment" is just. Had Conor Daly used a racial slur himself, Lilly's action would be understandable and justified. But Conor didn't — and Lilly Diabetes looks downright Orwellian by punishing him for something his father did before Conor was even born.

MIKE BUHLER
New Kid in Town

How far is too far when it comes to punishing people for making inappropriate remarks? Shortly after he was drafted by the Buffalo Bills this spring, former University of Wyoming quarterback Josh Allen found himself on the hot seat when it surfaced that he had posted racist tweets several years ago as a high school student. While Allen was not suspended or released because of the tweets (which he deleted and apologized for posting), not many would have been surprised if he had been.

Again, how far is too far? While punishing people who make inappropriate remarks on social media is definitely justifiable under some circumstances, is it fair to punish people for remarks they made many years ago as teenagers? And it is certainly not fair to punish Conor Daly for his father's sins, even if Lilly Diabetes thinks that it is.

Most unique election in Wyoming history?

In the end, an election that looked like the craziest in Wyoming history ended up right where it started — front runner State Treasurer Mark Gordon of Buffalo won going away.

But what happened on Tuesday, Aug. 21, in the GOP gubernatorial primary was unprecedented in the state's 128-year history.

A record number of voters, some 140,000 in the total primary and almost 118,000 in the GOP primary, rocked the preconceived notions of pundits and the plans of candidates.

Gordon withstood a withering assault of anonymous nasty mailers plus complaints by fellow candidate Harriet Hageman of Cheyenne to notch the win.

Three unprecedented things happened in this race: vast sums of money were spent, an endorsement by a sitting president occurred and record numbers of "crossover" voters became Republicans.

First, the biggest change in this race compared to past ones was the huge sum of money expended. Gordon, Hageman, Foster Friess of Jackson and Sam Galeotos of Cheyenne may have each spent nearly $2 million or more. Most ever spent prior to this was eight years ago when Gov. Matt Mead spent $1.3 million to win a hotly contested primary.

Second, President Donald Trump endorsed Friess on the morning of Election Day. Never have we had a sitting president endorse a candidate in a Wyoming primary campaign.

Third, arguably, the most unique story of this campaign will be the final tally of people changing parties at the polls. It may have been as high as 9,000 voters as Democrats and Independents became Republicans. Most of the crossovers appeared to support Gordon for his seemingly moderate political stances or to vote against Friess, because of Trump connections and his strong pro-life beliefs. Spirited local races also caused crossovers registrations.

Some Democrats demurred when told the theory about crossovers. But good for them. If what they did was intentional, it was legal under current Wyoming law and was a dogged good strategy.

Republican mega-donor Friess entered the race late, just 119 days before primary day. He started with less than 1 percent name recognition and was sixth in the polls at the end of April. On Election Day, he finished second. A week before the election, he was one point ahead of Gordon in a poll by a national firm, making the race look much closer than it ended up being.

During the GOP primary campaign, it always seemed that it benefitted Friess if the other candidates (Gordon, Hageman, Galeotos) stayed bunched up during the last months of campaigning. Then Friess could leap-frog them at the end. Didn't happen. Gordon's lead was too big on Aug. 21.

On primary election day, the statewide crossover vote sure seemed to increase Gordon's victory. Plus the surprising drop in votes for Galeotos meant somebody was going to get his lost votes.

My totally unscientific projected totals would have seen Gordon and Friess finishing tied with 30,000 votes each. That estimate was obviously incorrect.

At his rally Tuesday night Friess said he reached out to Gordon and offered to help in any way. He encouraged everyone to help Gordon, too. He also said he and Lynn plan to stay involved in Wyoming issues.

The campaign pace was frenetic for all the candidates. It helped that Friess had his own plane. For example, he made 17 campaign stops in cities and towns during the last 72 hours of the campaign: Sheridan, Laramie, Cheyenne, Rawlins, Casper, Douglas, Rawlins, Casper, Gillette, Pinedale, Cheyenne, Evanston, Gillette, Casper, Jackson, Gillette, and finally Casper.

Even with a plane, that schedule could wear you out.

And then there were the other races:

I was surprised to see Curt Meier of Torrington knock off Leland Christensen of Alta for state treasurer. Seemed like Leland had the momentum. Meier spent a lot of money on ads and had Newcastle ad guru Bob Bonnar in his corner, a big plus.

Nathan Winters of Thermopolis sure seemed like he had a chance to defeat Kristi Racines of Cheyenne for state auditor, but it was not even close. If Kristi wins the general, I hope she will open the state's books for Wyoming citizens.

U.S. Sen. John Barrasso of Casper easily turned back Dave Dodson of Jackson, who spent a boatload of money in a furious challenge. Now Barrasso will take on Gary Trauner of Wilson in the general.

This primary took on the feel of an athletic contest with everyone cheering on their teams. Now, I am ready to cheer on the Cowboys and Broncos!

Bob Richard to share stories from new book

"Can you ride a horse?" Such was the question that then Yellowstone National Park Superintendent Lon Garrison asked Bob Richard. Accompanying his dad — noted photographer Jack Richard — to the park in the mid-1950s, the younger Richard happily answered, "Yes, sir, I can!"

And with that, Richard became Yellowstone's first front country horse patrolman.

In an illustrated presentation at the Buffalo Bill Center of the West on Thursday, Aug. 30, Bob Richard will share his experiences in the park atop his massive horse, Big Red, the last Yellowstone Morgan stallion.

Taken from his new book, Memoir of a 1950s Yellowstone Horse Ranger, the free talk starts at 1 p.m. in the center's Coe Auditorium. Afterward, Richard will autograph copies of his work at the center's Museum Store.

A lifelong Wyoming resident, Richard's varied experiences are pure West. He worked at guest ranches, guided horse and hunting trips, ranched, and for 37 years owned and operated Grub Steak Expeditions, personally touring thousands of visitors from around the world through Yellowstone and its ecosystem.

Educated at the Universities of Wyoming, Arizona and California (in Fresno), Richard has served as a teacher and school administrator, a decorated United States Marine Corps pilot in Vietnam and, for 21 years, helped coordinate American Red Cross service and relief activities in the western United States.

To say that Yellowstone holds a special place in Richard's heart is an understatement. Now retired, he remains a licensed photographer, fishing guide, hiking guide, historian and transportation authority for the park. He's also an active outdoorsman and wildlife photographer, a member of many service and business organizations in the Cody area, and author. Read more about Richard at codytoyellowstone.com.

Bison harasser gets four months in jail

BY CJ BAKER
Tribune Editor

An Oregon man who taunted bison in Yellowstone and caused disturbances in two other national parks has been ordered to serve 130 days in jail.

Raymond Reinke, 55, has also been banned from Yellowstone, Grand Teton and Glacier national parks for the next five years while he's on unsupervised probation.

During a Thursday hearing at Mammoth Hot Springs, U.S. Magistrate Judge Mark Carman also ordered Reinke to pay $70 in court fees and assessments.

The Pendleton, Oregon, resident pleaded guilty to four misdemeanor charges. That included counts of interference with a peace officer and unreasonable noise stemming from an incident in Grand Teton and counts of disturbing wildlife and storing an open container of alcohol in a vehicle in connection with the harassment of the bison in Yellowstone.

A pair of additional charges related to those two incidents were dismissed as part of a plea deal.

Yellowstone National Park Deputy Superintendent Pat Kenney said Judge Carmon's sentence "reinforces the park's commitment toward protecting wildlife and other natural resources as well as our visiting public."

"We encourage everyone to commit to stewardship of our public lands while enjoying our national parks and respecting the experiences of others," Kenney said.

Reinke was initially arrested in Grand Teton on July 28, after reportedly being "drunk and disorderly." He was released on bond the following day — with orders not to drink while awaiting further proceedings — but on July 31, he was reportedly argumentative with a ranger in Yellowstone and "appeared to be intoxicated," authorities say. Reinke was allowed to go on his way with a citation for no seat belt, but hours later, visitors reported that Reinke was standing in the road, shouting at and harassing bison in Hayden Valley.

Rangers issued a couple more citations to Reinke later that night, but they were apparently unaware of the egregiousness of his actions and of his other recent trouble with the law.

'[The sentence] reinforces the park's commitment toward protecting wildlife and other natural resources as well as our visiting public.'

Pat Kenney
Yellowstone National Park
deputy superintendent

When park officials connected the dots and watched a visitor's viral video of the incident, they obtained a warrant to re-arrest Reinke and revoke his bond. He was located at Glacier National Park's Many Glacier Hotel and taken into custody on Aug. 2 — though not before he reportedly caused a disturbance in the hotel dining room.

Reinke has been held in the Yellowstone Justice Center in Mammoth since his arrest. The time he's already served will count toward his sentence.

After he's released from jail and put on probation, Reinke must stay away from alcohol and bars and complete an alcohol treatment program, among other conditions.

MEETEETSE MUSEUMS TO HOST QUILT SHOW, BOOK SIGNING

The Meeteetse Museums will be hosting two events over the Labor Day weekend: the annual Chatelaine Quilt Guild Show from Friday through Monday and a Monday signing of James Fuller's new book, "The Wyoming Blizzard of 1949: Surviving the Storm."

Both events are free. The museums will exhibit the quilts and wall-hangings of the Chatelaine Quilt Guild, a group of textile artists from the Big Horn Basin that shows its works in Meeteetse each Labor Day. The textiles will be a mix of new creations and older works with sentimental value to their owners.

One of the many works to be exhibited this year is the wall-hanging "Flower Power: All you need is love" by Sara Westberg of Meeteetse. She is also exhibiting a quilt called "Mini Mariner's Compass." Among the other exhibitors are Lili Turnell, Dawn Beer, Pam Johnston, Kinli Lowe and Geraldine Linton. Linton is exhibiting a wool quilt made by Gladys Preator in the 1950s, as well as a quilt made for her parents' 50th wedding anniversary.

On Labor Day, the final day of the quilt show, Fuller will greet guests and sign his new book from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Meeteetse Museums. The Wyoming Blizzard of 1949: Surviving the Storm focuses on the people who survived a series of blizzards that hit Wyoming and other states from January through March of 1949. Fuller tells the stories of the people who experienced it. His interest in the subject began in 2015, when he was hired to research the Wyoming PBS documentary, Blizzard of '49.

THREE-VEHICLE CRASH INJURES ONE

Three different vehicles were involved in a crash on U.S. Highway 14-A on the afternoon of Aug. 21, resulting in one driver being injured southwest of Ralston. The driver of a southbound silver Ford Mustang had attempted to pass another vehicle, but didn't see a Dodge truck on his left, said Wyoming Highway Patrol Trooper Todd Hardesty. The Ford and Dodge collided, causing the Mustang to spin into the northbound lane and hit the driver's side of a gray Chevrolet, Hardesty said. The driver of the Chevy was transported to Powell Valley Hospital while the driver of the Ford was cited for improper passing, the trooper said. No other injuries were reported. Former elected officials decry lack of civility

BY MATTHEW GREEN

The University of Wyoming hosted a dialogue between former state politicians focused on working together in today's political climate.

The dialogue was part of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the UW Haub School of Environment and Natural Resources at the University of Wyoming and the Ruckelshaus Institute, a division of the Haub School.

Former Republican U.S. Sen. Al Simpson, former Democratic Gov. Mike Sullivan and Haub School Board Chairman John Turner came together to discuss the topic. Retired Wyoming Supreme Court Chief Justice Marilyn Kite moderated the discussion.

Launching right into it, the panelists criticized the current state of affairs and the lack of civility on a national stage. Simpson said discussion about civility goes well until someone mentions President Donald Trump or Elizabeth Warren, a U.S. Democratic Senator from Massachusetts. Then, it all ends in chaos. Simpson said it is extraordinary the news cycle seems to be a constant focus on the bosom of porn star Stormy Daniels, who is alleged to have had an affair with Trump, instead of important issues.

One part of the country that has not lost its civility is Wyooming, Turner said. The state should become the model for the rest of the country to follow in how people treat each other. Turner said people need to treat politics as less of a spectator sport and get involved, saying the root of incivility comes from ignorance.

"Civility is the yeast of democracy," Sullivan said.

Leadership requires both decency and civility, he said, and leadership on both sides of national politics have lost those traits. During his time as a Democratic governor in a very Republican state, Sullivan said he never had a problem with civility. There were disagreements,

'Civility is the yeast of democracy' but both sides were able to come together to compromise.

"Trust was the coin of the realm," Simpson said. "But it is severely tarnished now."

Sullivan said people will try to use emotion, racism, fear or guilt to kill legislation, and the only way to wade through those attacks is with facts. Simpson said a person will be called everything in politics, but his detractors cannot let those attacks define them. At times, a person must fight back against the attacks.

Simpson said he has made a point of going to lunch with people who disagree with him. Sullivan said it is important to also bring people together to mend wounds. He spoke about his time in Ireland during the Northern Ireland peace talks and his experience with George Mitchell, then the U.S. special envoy to Northern Ireland.

Sullivan said Mitchell was able to build trust with both sides of the conflict through open dialogue. When they were able to bring both sides of the Irish conflict together at the White House, Sullivan said it was a huge moment, considering it was the first time they had been in the same room.

Sullivan criticized some of the candidates in the 2018 Republican primary race to be Wyoming's next governor. He said it was wrong for them to claim it was a good thing they were not politicians. He said the moment a person put their name on the ballot, they become a politician.

Simpson said a person can't hate politics and love democracy, as they are one and the same.

"Hate corrodes the container that it is carried in," Simpson said. "Humor is the universal solvent against the abrasive elements of life."

During his time in politics, Sullivan said he didn't meet a truly bad person. He said he has met amazing people on both sides of the aisle, but they tend not to be in the news.

Turner called for greater involvement in politics from the entire population. He said it was a shame that Iraq had a higher voter turnout than the United States. The electorate, Turner said, needs to take responsibility for the current state of affairs of national discourse, and voters need to become more engaged at all levels.

Haynes residency case to continue in January

BY KATIE KULL
Wyoming Tribune Eagle
Via Wyoming News Exchange

Gubernatorial candidate Taylor Haynes, who received roughly 5 percent of the votes in last week's Republican primary, is still facing legal action over questions about his residency.

Will Dinneen, a spokesman for the Wyoming Secretary of State's Office, wrote in an email that a Laramie County District Court judge will hold evidentiary hearings over two days in late January about Haynes' residency.

The Wyoming Constitution requires that, to be eligible to be governor, someone must have lived in the state for the prior five years. Haynes came under fire weeks before the primary election, after the Secretary of State's Office received an anonymous tip alleging that the Laramie doctor lives or had lived in Colorado. Haynes' ranch — which he claimed as his home in 2014 — straddles Wyoming's southern border and Larimer County, Colorado, property records say the ranch house actually is located in Colorado.

The Secretary of State's Office sued through the Wyoming Attorney General's Office in July, asking a Laramie County judge to suspend Haynes' campaign, expedite court proceedings before the election and give the secretary of state legal authority to remove a candidate from the ballot after those forms had been certified and printed.

District Court Judge Thomas Campbell of Cheyenne denied the request to suspend Haynes' campaign before the election, saying approving the request would, in part, deny Haynes his due process rights to contest his residency status in a court of law.

Haynes has said the allegations against him were intended as a political attack and he dismissed media reports about the questions surrounding his residency as "fake news." He finished fifth among the six Republicans who ran in last week's primary. It was Haynes' third run for governor.

"We've taken the constitutional message with Judeo-Christian values to our voters three consecutive campaigns and clearly there is not a critical mass of voters who want that, and I accept that," Haynes said in a message to supporters that he posted to Facebook on Wednesday. "Therefore I have no plans to run for governor again."

It's unclear whether the Secretary of State's Office has taken or will take any steps to improve vetting of candidates before they go on the ballot.

Dinneen said Secretary of State Ed Buchanan would be too busy to talk to the Wyoming Tribune Eagle about that issue until after the canvassing board had met to certify the election this week.

WALKING: RX for Health

Melissa Z. is a 44-year-old, overweight teacher who wants to start an exercise program and sensibly decided to have a checkup before plunging into it.

"Doctor," she said, "I read about all these people walking, and I don't understand. How can something as casual as that get me into shape?"

The answer, as most serious walkers know, is that health walking is about as closely related to walking as swimming is to dog-paddling in a pool. There's more to it than walking to the mailbox.

About 67 million men and women are walking regularly, and podiatrists are delighted. Besides being healthy for feet and involving fewer injuries than jogging, walking has many potential benefits—reduced blood pressure, stress and arthritis pain, to name a few.

Melissa is approaching her exercise goal the right way, by realizing that a fitness program won't be any fun—much less possible—unless her feet are in good shape. She'll get some pointers about warm-up exercises: pacing her gradual buildup to a regular walking routine; and another important aspect of walking programs in which podiatric physicians specialize, proper foot wear.

Walking: It's good Rx for health.

Hicswa also spoke about cybersecurity and the increasing threat that hackers pose to NWC and its computers.

"Internet scammers are getting more sophisticated all the time," she said.

Hicswa warned those in attendance that if they receive an email appearing to be from her NWC is implementing mandatory monthly training modules which focus on various cybersecurity topics.

Also present at the NWC State of the College address were Sandy Caldwell, the new executive director of the Wyoming

"She [Waiwaiole] spoke about the importance of student engagement in retaining and graduating students," Hicswa said. "She stated that our student success data exceeds national averages in several areas, including the fact that 97 percent of our students would recommend Northwest College to friends and family."

POWELL GRINDS OUT 331 YARDS RUSHING IN ZERO WEEK CONTEST

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

On Friday night, in its first action of the season, the Powell High School football team routed the Riverton Wolverines. But it was something that happened on Saturday that first-year head coach Aaron Papich took pride in the most.

When lineman Macen Thomas' helmet came apart during Saturday's junior varsity game against Rocky Mountain, an unlikely crew of equipment managers on the Panthers' sideline hustled into action.

"[Thomas] had a double-buckle malfunction, which meant the snaps busted off on his helmet," said Papich. "A fix required pliers and a screwdriver. So [Thomas] ran off the field, and our varsity players, using tools they dug up somewhere, got both snaps replaced, and he was back in the game one play later."

With how efficiently the players dealt with the problem, "I kinda joked that they were like a NASCAR pit crew," Papich chuckled.

That the varsity squad was on the sidelines for the JV game, fixing equipment and running water out to the field during timeouts, was a testament to the kind of teamwork and sense of family Papich and his staff have been working to instill.

"Part of our culture is that 'meaning' matters," he said. "It comes down to TEAM: Trust in the process, Effort, Attitude and the M is Meaning. These guys have a job, a role. Their purpose Saturday was to help support the JV players, and I think they did that great."

Teamwork was also on display Friday at Panther Stadium, as Powell welcomed Riverton for a Zero Week matchup. In front of a large and boisterous home crowd (not to mention a sizable contingent that made the trip from Riverton), the Panthers racked up 491 yards of total offense and pounded the Wolverines 29-7.

"It was an awesome night in a great environment," Papich said. "It was a lot of fun, definitely."

The Panthers out-worked Riverton in nearly every statistical category, most notably in the rushing game. Powell gained 331 yards on the ground, led by the three-headed monster of senior Jacob Harrison, junior

The Powell Lady Panthers volleyball team got the season off to a strong start over the weekend at the McDonald's Invite in Riverton, winning four of six matches at the two-day tournament Friday and Saturday.

"It was about what I expected," Powell coach Randi Bonander said. "I knew it would be challenging in that the girls would need time to get the first-game jitters out, get comfortable in their positions and the lineup in an actual game."

Powell opened the tournament Friday with a 21-15, 21-15 loss to host Riverton, but bounced back to sweep Wind River 21-14, 21-14, and Thermopolis 21-13, 21-17.

The Lady Panthers then swept Shoshoni 21-18, 21-18 to open Saturday and also downed Big Piney 21-7, 21-8 before finishing the tournament with a 21-11, 21-16 loss to Pinedale.

"Our communication was lacking at times, which showed against the better teams like Riverton and Pinedale," Bonander said.

Asay. "Things are coming along well."

Last week was a busy one for the Powell High School tennis teams, as the Panthers and Lady Panthers welcomed in teams from Jackson, Riverton and Rawlins.

Jackson arrived Thursday and came to play, winning both the boys' and girls' team matches 5-0 and 4-1, respectively. The Panther teams rebounded Saturday with wins over Riverton and Rawlins.

"It was not a bad day [on Saturday]," said PHS head coach Joe

WAINSCOTT, SESSIONS CARD TOP 10 FINISHES

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

The Powell High School golf teams began Back-to-School week on the golf course, competing at the Lander Invitational Aug. 20-21.

"It is unusual for us to play on a Friday and Saturday [Aug. 17-18] and then turn around and play again Monday and Tuesday," said PHS head coach Troy Hildebrand. "This was a lot of tournament golf for our players, but also a great opportunity to see a couple of new teams in Lyman, Jackson and Star Valley."

The Panthers finished fourth in the seven-team tournament, shooting a combined 378 on day one and a 364 on day two for a 742 total. The Lady Panthers took fifth place on the girls side, 356-370 for a 726.

The Lander teams swept the event, with the boys finishing first with a 630 total (322-308) and the girls winning with a 548 (280-268).

The event was highlighted by a pair of top-10 individual performances for PHS, with Mycah Wainscott shooting 89-101 to tie for fourth and Rob Sessions shooting 85-86 to tie for 10th.

Karsten Simmons of Worland and Jaren Calkins of Lander each shot 3-under for the two days, with Simmons winning in a playoff. Rachel Stoinski of Lander shot 82-79 to take the girls title.

LADY PANTHERS

Wainscott once again led the way for the Lady Panthers, carding an impressive 89 on the first day of competition before shooting a 101. Her 89 was a career-best.

"She [Wainscott] hit the ball very well and really showed what she is capable of with that round," Hildebrand said. "Tuesday's 101 wasn't a terrible round, but her first nine

DIVERS FINISH 1-3-4, FIVE QUALIFY FOR STATE

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

Lady Panther Emma Karhu won the diving event, while teammate Caitlyn Miner earned state-qualifying marks in each of her four swimming events, as the Powell High School girls' swim and diving team finished fourth Saturday at the Bruce Gresly Pentathlon in Lander.

Unofficial team results put host Lander in first with a score of 731.5. Lyman was runner-up with a score of 584.5 and Jackson, competing in 3A again for the first time in a couple of years, rounded out the top three with a score of 359.5. Powell was unofficially fourth with 320 points.

"Overall, we were pleased," said PHS head coach Bob Smartt. "The athletes get to swim as many as five races, so that gives us a very good benchmark on where our training stands and what we need to do going forward."

Powell was led by a strong performance by its dive crew, placing first, third and fourth.

Sophomore Karhu took the six-dive event and posted an over 169.70, with senior Caitlyn Miner in third (with a state-qualifying score of 158.75) and junior Maddie Hackenberg was fourth with a score of 135.75. Smartt said three freshman divers — Delainey Rayment, Kylie Kahl and Taycee Walker — also gathered valuable experience.

The event featured a diving competition and a swimming competition, with many of the Lady Panthers participating in both. If an athlete did not participate in at least four swimming events, that athlete was marked an exhibition competitor and received no points in the pentathlon.

"Even though Emma Karhu won the entire diving event, she didn't receive any points for it," Smartt said. "Normally down in Jackson, and the two would have gone at it again potentially in regionals, but it was rained out.”

The rematch once again went Fairbanks’ way, as he downed Brown in straight sets 6-4, 6-3.

In No. 2 singles, Jackson’s Steven Ashurst defeated Dylan Preator 6-1, 7-5. The two players had met twice last season when both were playing in the No. 2 doubles spot, splitting the difference with a win apiece; both made the jump to No. 2 singles this season.

“The kid [Ashurst] is pretty solid and athletic at the lefty game,” Asay said. “Those two moved up and took the big jump into that two spot. It was another one of those matches that just as easily could have been a win for Powell.”

In No. 1 doubles, Jackson Santomauro and Brooks Bradford of Jackson defeated Aidan Jacobsen and Grant Dillivan 6-2, 6-0, while at the No. 2 spot, George Gervais and Jesse Stevenson took down Powell’s Aidan Hunt and Logan Brown 6-3, 6-2.

Trey Dykeman and Elliot Sanchez defeated the Panthers’ Jay Cox and CJ Brown 6-1, 2-6, 6-2 in a hard-fought No. 3 doubles match.

JACKSON 4, LADY PANTHERS 1

Lady Panther Sierra Sanders was the lone bright spot for Powell on the girls’ side against Jackson, winning in the No. 2 singles spot in straight sets over Corah Pitman Miller 7-5, 6-2.

“After some frustration on Monday for Sierra [Sanders] against Cody, playing the defending champion in Teagan Thompson, she bounced back and got back in the win column,” Asay said. “That was good for her — she was pretty frustrated with the bagel in the second set [against Cody]. It’s been fun to see her having some success.”

The rest of the matches once again “could have gone either way,” according to Asay, but unfortunately it was Jackson’s day to shine. In No. 1 singles, Jackson’s Hyla Chatham defeated Elise North 6-3, 6-1, while in No. 1 doubles, Shayla Shoopman and Sloane Asay fell in straight sets to Valerie Stevenson and Rivkah Bar-Or 7-5, 6-1.

Jackson’s Megan Tucker and Anna Revill bested Ashley Dunkerley and Sophie Morrow 5-7, 6-1, 6-2 in No. 2 doubles, while in the three spot, Sam Fairbanks and Sarah Gerger defeated Hailee Paul and Sami Cole 6-4, 7-5.

“That’s a good, strong Jackson team,” Asay said.

PANTHERS 5, RIVERTON 0

It was a short-handed crew from Riverton that showed up for the boys’ match Saturday morning, as the Wolverines were forced to forfeit the No. 2 and No. 3 doubles matches.

“I love the wins for our kids, but you’d like for the kids to be able to get the work in,” Asay said. “The coaches from Riverton try really hard to field a team, but it’s a community where they just really don’t have a lot of support.”

Brown and Preator made short work of Riverton’s Devon Harper and Tanner Selvig, winning 6-0, 6-1 and 6-0, 6-0 in the No. 1 and No. 2 singles spots.

In No. 1 doubles, Jacobsen and Dillivan cruised to a straight sets win over Anthony Petsche and Kaden Kellner 6-1, 6-0.

LADY PANTHERS 5, RIVERTON 0

Riverton brought eight girls to Powell Saturday, but were only able to play seven of them, as Sierra Sanders took a forfeit victory in the No. 2 singles spot. In No. 1 singles, Elise North defeated Summer Bass 6-0, 6-0.

Shayla Shoopman and Sloane Asay topped Grace Rohn and Kate McDonald 6-0, 6-0 in No. 1 doubles, Ashley Dunkerley and Sophie Morrow beat Kaia Tippits and Mya Tate 6-0, 6-0 in the second spot and in the third spot, Hailee Paul and Sami Cole defeated Henriette Bakke and Kia Wilson 6-0, 6-0.

PANTHERS 3, RAWLINS 2

Rawlins gave the Panthers all they could handle Saturday afternoon, but Brown and Preator continued to play well in the top two positions.

Brown defeated Ryan Pfeffer 6-0, 6-1 in the No. 1 singles spot, while Preator made short work of Jacob Pacheco 6-0,

In No. 1 doubles, Powell’s Jacobsen and Dillivan outlasted Gabe Murry and Cody Scott 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, while in the two spot, Sebastian Maes and Chad Hansen of Rawlins beat Aidan Hunt and Logan Brown 7-6, 4-6, 6-2. The No. 3 singles spot went to Rawlins on a forfeit after an injury to CJ Brown.

LADY PANTHERS 5, RAWLINS 0

In No. 1 singles, Elise North bested Selena Landa 6-1, 6-2, while Sierra Sanders continued her winning ways, defeating MacKenzie Thompson 7-5, 6-3.

“Elise [North] had a good, competitive win, and Sierra [Sanders] got pushed a little bit actually,” Asay said. “We had a chance to communicate a little bit during a couple of changeovers, and she [Sanders] said she wasn’t feeling quite like she was hitting on all cylinders. But she fought through that and came out with a win.”

The No. 1 doubles team of Shoopman and Sloane Asay stayed in the win column for the day with a straight sets win over Sam Waring and Darby Thayer 6-1, 6-4. Coach Asay said the pair really seemed to click chemistry-wise in this match.

“Where before I’d seen them [Shoopman and Asay] flat-footed and not moving like they should, this time they really played together well, this was what it’s supposed to look like. It was a great win for them,” he said.

In No. 2 doubles, Ashley Dunkerley and Sophie Morrow downed Madelynn Kulmus and Alexis Townsend 6-3, 6-1, while Hailee Paul and Sami Cole defeated Laminah Stewart and Sharayah Lusch 6-1, 6-0 in the No. 3 spot.

“We actually rolled through those Rawlins kids pretty easily,” coach Asay said.

The PHS tennis teams will host their final home matches Saturday against Sheridan. Games are scheduled to begin at 11 a.m.

holes she just couldn’t get anything going. I was proud of how she came back and finished her second nine.”

Cat Wilson also finished the event with a career best, carding a 114 on Monday and following that up with a 130 on Tuesday.

“That was a very good round for her [Wilson], and I know there is more improvement to come for her over the next few weeks,” Hildebrand said. “Tuesday, her first two holes were very tough on her; but she kept battling along and had a nice stretch in the middle of that round.”

Bailey Kennedy continues to improve with every tournament, and carded her best-ever tournament round with a second-day 149, shaving four strokes off her previous day’s round of 153. Hildebrand said Kennedy is “just playing better all the time.”

“She [Kennedy] is limiting her big numbers on holes and just hitting the ball better,” he said. “She has battled a little bit of a wrist injury, and hopefully this stretch before Buffalo will give her time to get healthy.”

PANTHERS

Sessions continued his steady play, and broke into the top 10 for the first time this season, carding an 85-86 for a two-day total of 171.

“He [Sessions] is very close to breaking through and putting up something in the 70s for us in the next few weeks,” Hildebrand said. “I am extremely proud of how he has stayed focused and finished his rounds strong, even when he has faced some adversity.”

Sanders returned for the Lander tournament after missing the Worland Invite, carding an 87-90 that was “OK by his standards,” according to Hildebrand.

“[Sanders] had two very different rounds that ended up nearly the same,” Hildebrand explained. “Monday, he putted very well to overcome not hitting the ball that well, and Tuesday hit the ball much better but struggled on the greens. When he puts both of those pieces together in the next couple weeks, he will be right back in the low 80s for sure.”

George Higgins had a breakout performance at Lander, shooting a career-best 85 on day one. He carding a 99 on day two, but Hildebrand said the young golfer continues to impress every week.

“Tuesday, he [Higgins] had a couple of tough holes that caused him to be in the upper 90s but overall he is learning each week,” Hildebrand said. “He does a great job of using that knowledge to improve his game for the next tournament.”

Yogi Sullivan got off to a slow start Monday, but rebounded the following day, finishing the tournament with a 121-110 for an overall 231.

“Yogi [Sullivan] had a tough Monday, but came back Tuesday and played much better,” Hildebrand said. “His front nine Tuesday was a 50, which is much more in line with what he is capable of posting. This week of practice before Buffalo will be a great chance for Yogi to iron out a few things in his game.”

Kason Gannon rounded out the Panthers’ contingent for the tournament, carding a 124 on Monday before battling back to shoot a 109 Tuesday. He finished at 233.

The second round “is more in line with how he has been playing this year,” Hildebrand said. “He is figuring out how to get around the course better each week, and this practice time before Buffalo should benefit him as well.”

After a much-needed break, the PHS golf teams will be back in action this week, heading to Buffalo on Thursday and Friday.

“[The break] gave us six days of practice, which should benefit all of our players,” Hildebrand said. “[It] gives us a chance to really work on a few individual areas with each of the players.”

she would have scored 48 points for first place in diving, but because of the way they configured things, and because we didn't swim her in four other swim races, she had an x by her name for exhibition. That's why that [unofficial final team score] is a little misleading."

Miner placed third among all swimmers while qualifying for state in the 100 butterfly, 100 backstroke, 100 breaststroke and 100 freestyle, plus the diving.

"With a total of five state marks, senior Miner is well on her way to qualifying in all nine individual events for the fourth time in her high school career, a very rare achievement," Smartt said.

Sophomore Addison Moretti had a strong meet, with state-qualifying marks in the 100 butterfly and 100 back, as well as scoring points in the 50 and 100 freestyle. Junior Sidney O'Brien earned a state mark in the 100 backstroke, and swam "significant personal best times in her 100 butterfly and 100 breaststroke races," Smartt said.

The meet awarded points to the top

30 athletes in each event. In addition to the athletes mentioned above, Lady Panthers scoring points were Ashlyn Aguirre (28), Anna Fowler (20), Elizabeth Liggett (19) and Madison Lowery (12). On the day, the Lady Panthers recorded 24 personal best performances.

The Panthers' next meet is the Terry Bartlett Invitational on Friday in Cody.

"We have a long list of technique issues that we will try to address in practice with individual drills for the athletes," Smartt said. "From a team perspective, I think we matched well against Jackson and Worland. The team that had a strong meet that we'll have to look out for going forward is Lyman."

PHS FB: Panthers travel to Worland for official start of the season against the Warriors Friday at 7 p.m.

Brody Karhu and sophomore Kadden Abraham. Harrison finished with 148 yards on 21 carries, averaging 7 yards per carry and scoring twice. Karhu followed with 119 yards on 13 carries, averaging just over nine yards per touch, while Abraham totaled 43 yards — including 38 on one big run in the third quarter.

“Those guys ran very well, and our offensive line executed outstanding for so early in the season,” Papich said. “We’re really just trusting in the process. I think if we try to stick with the process, then the outcome will take care of itself.”

With just under 10 minutes to play in the first quarter, Panther senior Kaelan Groves blocked and recovered a Riverton punt, scampering untouched into the end zone for the first score of the game; the PAT was no good. The Wolverines answered two possessions later, putting together an impressive 82-yard drive that chewed up the remainder of the quarter and was capped by a 2-yard touchdown plunge by Cade Campbell. The point-after gave Riverton their first and only lead at 7-6.

The Panthers wasted no time on the ensuing drive, retaking the lead 9-7 on a 20-yard field goal by sophomore Ashton Brewer, the first of three he would have on the night. The Panthers scored again on their very next possession, as Harrison battled his way into the end zone from the 5 for his first score of the game.

The Panthers went into halftime with a 16-7 lead, something that didn’t happen often last season.

“It was kind of different at halftime,” Groves said. “Everyone comes in, and we’re realizing that this is the most fun we’ve had playing football in a couple of years.”

After a couple of nice returns in the first half, Powell senior Kanyon Gann got the crowd on its feet to start the second, returning the opening kickoff 90 yards for an apparent score. While the touchdown was nullified by a penalty on the return, the Wolverines’ special teams struggled to find an answer for Gann, who made something happen every time he touched the ball.

‘We have great players; it’s our job as coaches to help them play great.’

*Aaron Papich

“It was a pretty exciting game,” Gann said. “Our line was doing great, our backfield — it was an all-around great effort by everybody.”

The Panthers drove the ball down to the Wolverines’ 25-yard-line, but a Groves pass intended for Gann in the end zone was picked off by Riverton’s Dillon Lange, ending that threat.

But the Panthers’ defense, led by Karhu, Groves and Seth Horton, continued to corral Riverton’s playmakers, giving Powell’s offense ample opportunity to work.

“They [Riverton] broke off a couple of big plays, and I wanted to see how our kids responded to that,” Papich said. “[Riverton quarterback] Treyton Paxton had some big plays especially some of his zone-read stuff; he broke off about a 50-60 yard run at one point, and it resulted in a turnover on downs when that series was over. Big-time play, but no points on the board: That’s what I want to see, if they could withstand something like that, and they did.”

Offensively, the Panthers controlled the tempo, running the no-huddle offense to great effect. The big guys up front continued to wear down Riverton’s defensive line, opening running lanes and keeping the Wolverines out of the backfield.

“Our game plan was definitely our tempo,” Papich said. “What we wanted to really key on was us dictating the speed of the game on offense. Nothing really changed with our play-calling. We just hurried things up and tried to keep the ball rolling.”

Harrison scored his second touchdown of the night with six minutes left in the third quarter; Brewer’s extra point gave the Panthers a 23-7 lead. Brewer would round out the scoring with a pair of long field goals in the fourth, hitting from 36 and 38 yards into the wind. The Panthers’ special teams accounted for 17 points on the night, while racking up 127 yards on returns.

“You don’t usually think of special teams, but that’s a third of the game,” Papich said. “[Special teams play] is really I think what changed the momentum of the game. When our special teams are scoring like with Kaelan [Groves]’s block, when we’ve got Gann returning punts and kicks 30 or 40 yards, that puts us in excellent position. On top of that, if we can get inside the 30, our likelihood of scoring is very high with a touchdown or a field goal. That’s amazing. It cuts the field about in half for us. It really frees us up with our calls, and it relaxes everybody because it gives us a lot of options.”

Asked if he was aware that Brewer, listed in the program as a defensive lineman, had that kind of range as a kicker, Papich laughed.

“No, I didn’t,” he said of Brewer, who moonlights as a soccer player in the spring. “But I really love his [Brewer’s] confidence. He’s not arrogant, he’s confident. He lines up and does his job, then runs off the field. It’s pretty awesome to see. He’s a real good kid, and a good competitor.”

Groves and Ethan Asher split time at quarterback, and Papich said he was pleased with the performances of both. In a run-dominated game, Asher completed three of seven passes for 33 yards, while Groves had no completions on four attempts. Papich said he and his staff will make a decision on a starter this week after reviewing game film.

“It’s a very difficult decision because they both executed, they rallied around their team and we couldn’t be happier with their performance,” he said.

Groves, who began the scoring with his blocked punt return for a touchdown, said there’s plenty to like about the Panthers, if this game was any indication.

“It had been a while, so it felt good just to be out there running around, having fun with the team,” he said. “There were first-game jitters, obviously, but we rallied together. We’re just trying to get aligned. After the first series, I think we just settled in.”

Senior tight end Carson Heinen caught two passes for 29 yards, while receiver Trent Dicks hauled in one catch for 4 yards. For Heinen, who missed last season’s finale against Cody because of injury, it felt good to be back on the field.

“It had been a while, so it felt good just to be out there running around, having fun with the team,” he said. “There were first-game jitters, obviously, but we rallied together. We’re just trying to get aligned. After the first series, I think we just settled in.”

The Panthers travel to Worland Friday for the official start to the season, and Papich said the Warriors will be ready to play.

“This week, we’ll focus on what we do best, and just trust our system and the process,” he said. “We’re not letting emotion drive us, we’re letting discipline drive us, so it’s all about the process and executing. We have all the tools; it just now comes to putting the players into positions where they can be successful. We have great players; it’s our job as coaches to help them play great.”

Panther sophomore Canyon Gonzales looks for room to run against a Riverton defender during a pre-game JV scrimmage against the Wolverines on Friday at Panther Stadium. The PHS JV played its first game Saturday, losing 10-9 to Rocky Mountain High School.

CUB SCOUT PACK 144 RECRUITING THURSDAY

Cub Scout Pack 144 will be recruiting new scouts at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Union Presbyterian Church, 329 N. Bent St. Interested boys and their parents are invited to hear an explanation of the Cub Scouts, including how the program works and the many activities boys can experience. New adventures are planned this year.

Attendees should use the church's Third Street entrance.

Cub Scouts will also be recruiting leaders, as the new Lion Den, Tiger Den and Wolf Den are in need of leadership. The Bear Den and the Webelos Den already have leadership.

Scouting strives to teach the core values of citizenship, compassion, cooperation, courage, faith, health and fitness, honesty, perseverance, positive attitude, resourcefulness, respect and responsibility.

Membership cost for the year is $80. This includes a book, scarf, slide, shoulder patch, unit numerals, Pinewood Derby car, raingutter regatta boat, registration fee and badges. Scholarships may be available. Cub Scout Pack 144's main fundraiser is popcorn. Each boy who sells popcorn receives a commission which can be used to pay the scout dues, get a uniform or scouting equipment. For more information, call Judy Showalter at 754-4618.

Preparing for School Begins at Birth

Many parents wait until their child is ready to enter school to have them screened. By then, a lot of learning may have already been missed. In fact, 90% of brain development occurs in the first few years.

That's why tracking a child's developmental process is an essential part of early childhood. The earlier delays are addressed, the more opportunity exists for increased growth and independence. Delaying intervention will likely result in the need for more costly and less effective interventions in the future. A developmental screening can prepare your child for school and improve their life forever.

All developmental services are free regardless of income. The only thing you cannot afford to do is wait.

They have received some referrals from them for vaccinations and have had no complaints with regards to them being in the building. Commissioner Tilden had one question that he would like to have Ms. Gutierrez answer with regards to NWFP transporting clients to Billings for abortions, Cathy Roes, President NWFP board stated that is completely untrue, we are not even capable of performing such acts, we do no referrals for abortions. Mr. Crampton believes that this will always continue to be a topic. They do discuss with clientele the Plan B option and sell it but so do other pharmacies. Commissioner Tilden gave an update of the organizational meeting he attended with Jason Crowder, Assistant Director, State Lands & Investments where the MOU was discussed regarding what could and could not be done with the land. Leasing out for Ag is not allowed. The committee talked about problems with trespassing, cows on the land, repairs needed to the fence, cattle guard dug out and replaced to name a few. The committee will continue to meet with state parks moving forward. The committee would like to see them approve a toilet facility and picnic area, Commissioner Tilden they would need to meet with commissioners before any decisions were made and then work with state lands board. Chairman Grosskopf stated maybe Game & Fish would help with the cattle guard issue.

Mr. Theil stated he was unable to attend the meeting but is confused, he thought the group was to come up with suggestions and sounds more like it has turned into a care taker group. Mr. Theil thought at the very least the committee was looking for recommendations on how to put the land into the state and out of the feds hands. He believed this was an advisory committee and not a board.

Commissioner Tilden said the state as no desire to change the MOU nor put any money into the ranch. Anything that is proposed during these meetings will be run by the commissioners and the committee will seek funding for these projects. Commissioner Fulkerson suggested the commissioners set goals and then move in that direction at the monthly meetings.
