PARK'S EAST GATE OPENS FOR SEASON

A coyote hunts for a rodent lunch near Indian Pond on the opening day of the park.

Employees were ready for the rush of visitors through the East Entrance at Yellowstone National Park, but Mother Nature doesn't follow a calendar.

By the time the gates opened to visitors on Friday — about 80 minutes late — guest vehicles formed a line for almost a mile. Roads were increasingly snow-covered leading to the gate and a layer of ice covered the road near the entrance. It was fascinating for Grace McIntosh of Powell, who skated along the road in her sneakers on the banks of the Shoshone River. She was first in line along with her mother, Stacy Boisseau, arriving at 3 a.m.

"We passed a bear and a bunch of deer, but Grace was sleeping," Boisseau said. The mother and daughter team hadn't been through the gates for six years — since Grace was just 9 months old. Boisseau thought it was time the two started a tradition. They wanted to be first because it was still a work day and mom, a waitress at 8th Street at the Ivy, had an 11 a.m. shift. Her plan was to get their pass and see as much of the park as possible before heading back. Other than a short nap once arriving at the gate, it was a mostly sleepless night. It was going to be a long day, she said.

At 8 a.m. East Entrance supervisor Brian Perry began walking down the long line of cars to alert visitors of a delay: Road crews were still working to clear Sylvan Pass of ice and snow.

"It caught me by surprise," Perry said. "We seemed to get a lot more snow than expected

'It felt busier last year, but that's probably because it was my first year.'

Powell man placed on probation in connection with storage unit theft

BY CJ BAKER
Tribune Editor

A Powell man caught with thousands of dollars worth of stolen property in 2017 — including dozens of porcelain dolls — has been placed on supervised probation.

Chad M. Hill, 44, served nearly 11 months in jail while his case was pending. He now must serve three years of probation and pay $275 for receiving, concealing or disposing of stolen property, with three to five years of prison time suspended.

CHAD HILL

Hill received the sentence in March as part of a deal with prosecutors, in which he agreed to plead guilty to the felony count.

The Park County Sheriff's Office and the Wyoming Division of Criminal Investigation had seized nearly 60 items and boxes of items from Hill's trailer in February 2017, believing they'd been stolen from units at Metzler Storage weeks earlier. Roughly $13,200 worth of items had gone missing from more than a dozen units at the storage facility — including two handguns and equipment used to measure distances underwater — but not all of the items were recovered.

Among the stolen materials found at Hill's trailer were tools, a tent, a sewing machine, a generator and numerous porcelain dolls. Many of the collectible dolls were found stashed in the residence's crawl space, where Hill himself also hid from law enforcement.

A confidential source told DCI agents that Hill had told them that he'd broken into the storage units. However, Hill denied that. He admitted to investigators that he had suspected the materials were stolen, but contended he'd bought them from someone else.

When pressed about the supposed seller's identity, Hill

City hires Logan for Clocktower Inn project

WILL HELP GUIDE CITY WITH HOTEL/CONFERENCE CENTER CONSTRUCTION

BY KEVIN KILLOUGH
Tribune News Editor

Although Zane Logan is retiring as Powell City Administrator next month, he's set to soon take on a new, temporary job for the city.

Last month, the Powell City Council agreed to hire Logan as the city's representative on the construction of the planned Clocktower Inn and Conference Center, which is expected to break ground later this year.

The Clocktower Inn is a public-private partnership between developer Steve Wahrlich of Billings and the City of Powell. Private funding is being raised to build a 75-room hotel, while an attached 10,000 square foot conference center will be constructed with a $2.6 million state grant. The conference center will initially be owned by the city and leased to/operated by the Clocktower Inn.

Logan will serve as the city's "eyes and ears" and ensure the project proceeds according to the agreements, within budget and on schedule, according to a letter he submitted to Mayor John Wetzel. Logan will serve as a single point of contact for the city on matters related to the Clocktower project. He'll also perform on-site inspections, confirm code compliance and monitor progress. Additionally, he will help resolve any

College to use helicopter for major repair operation

BY KEVIN KILLOUGH
Tribune News Editor

It's going to take a lot of coordination between Northwest College staff, contractors, emergency responders and pilots of twin-rotor military helicopter to remove a couple HVAC units from the roof of the college's Orendorff Building.

Later this month, a Boeing CH-47D Chinook helicopter will lift two rooftop units (RTU) off the Orendorff Building at NWC, set them down safely, and lift two new units back onto the roof.

The operation is planned for Tuesday, May 21, with an alternate date of Wednesday, May 22 in case of bad weather.

The new rooftop units (RTU) are over 6,000 pounds each. It's unclear what the older units weigh, but they're likely in the same three-ton neighborhood.

"They are pretty sizable," said Dave Plute, NWC plant manager.

But the Chinook is up to the task. Not only can they carry more than four times as much weight as the RTUs, they can operate in winds of nearly 35 mph. The obvious question is: why not just use a crane? However, not only would crews have to cut down trees to get into position a crane large enough to handle the weight of the RTUs, but the time they got done removing and replacing trees and concrete, college officials would spend more than using a helicopter. There's some danger to the operation, but the planners are making safety a priority.

Before the operation begins, NWC will evacuate Orendorff and all buildings in the flight-path of the helicopter. The streets around Orendorff will be blocked off, as will Cabre Gym parking lot just north of the Fagerberg Building. That lot will serve as an emergency landing zone, as will the field west of the Science and Math Building. The main landing zone, where they'll stage the new units, is the field north of the Vehicle Maintenance building.

Police and volunteer firefighters will be standing by in case anything goes wrong.

Plute said the senior pilots of Billings Flying Service, which will be providing the copter service, were very interested in this assignment.

"We should have a guy who's been in the seat for quite a while," Plute said.

If the mission gets the green light on May 21, the streets will be blocked off at 6 a.m. At 9:30 a.m., police, fire, ground teams and rooftop teams will perform communication checks. They expect to establish communication with the helicopter coming down from Billings by 10 a.m. At 10:45 a.m., the helicopters will take off from the main landing zone and hook onto the existing units. Then, 15 minutes later, they will put both the units down. Another 15 minutes

Theft: While the case was pending, prosecutors filed and then dropped a felony drug charge against Hill responded "by either saying that he didn't want to give up the name of the person he got them from, because he was not a snitch, or he gave us a nickname like 'Slow Step.' He would say it was just 'some Mexican dude,' and he couldn't really remember or know much more than that," Park County Sheriff's Deputy Andy McGill wrote in an affidavit. "Several more times, he was asked if he had any names of other people involved in the purchasing or theft of stolen items, and he would repeatedly make up an impractical or unbelievable story ..."

Hill was arrested on Feb. 17, 2017, for having the stolen property, but the case would later stall out in court.

This February — two years after his arrest — Hill wrote a letter to District Court Judge Bill Simpson, complaining that his court-appointed attorney had been unresponsive and his case neglected.

"I believe I'm innocent of the charges," Hill added.

A day after Hill mailed his letter, Deputy Park County Attorney Leda Pojman also expressed frustration with the case's slow progression. In a motion asking Simpson to set a firm trial date, Pojman wrote in bold, underlined text that the case "has been stagnant for two (2) years."

"The state has done everything in its power to resolve this case," Pojman wrote, noting prosecutors had repeatedly offered a plea deal. "Such unnecessary delay of two years is prejudicial to the state and to the victim."

Hill was sentenced to probation the next month.

While the case took a long time to move forward, it remained relatively active, with Hill going in and out of jail multiple times.

He was re-arrested in March 2018 after he reportedly missed a court date, then again that April when Powell police caught him with a little more than a gram of methamphetamine at the Best Choice Motel. Then he was arrested again in August after he missed appointments with a probation agent — and when prosecutors charged him with a new, felony drug offense.

In that case, the Park County Attorney's Office alleged that Hill had helped his soon-to-be ex-wife, Stefanie Hill, sell a small amount of meth to a DCI informant in February 2018.

Charging documents, supported by text messages, say

Stefanie Hill agreed to sell an "eight-ball" (3.5 grams) of meth for $300. However, she appears to have shorted the informant, only providing 1.3 grams of the drug in a transaction at the Powell Coin-Op Laundromat.

Stefanie Hill, 35, pleaded guilty to a felony count of delivering a controlled substance earlier this year. She received credit for the nine days she'd served in jail and was sentenced to three years of supervised probation, with three to five years of prison time suspended. Stefanie Hill was also ordered to pay $325 to the court and to repay DCI for the $300 she received from the informant.

Meanwhile, the county attorney's office dropped the aiding and abetting charge against Chad Hill in February. Charging documents alleged his only involvement was being present while his wife sold the meth.

While on probation, Chad Hill is required to obey the law and his probation agent, is subject to searches and seizures, is generally prohibited from associating with other felons and must maintain a full-time job, among other requirements.

He is not subject to any drug or alcohol conditions, with those marked on the court order as "non-applicable."

Hill was released to probation following his March 19 sentencing in Cody.

Riverton takes first step to reduce urban deer population numbers

RIVERTON (WNE) — The City of Riverton is moving forward with a plan to reduce the urban deer population, beginning with a law against feeding the animals.

Riverton City Council members have directed staff to draft an ordinance barring the feeding of certain wild animals in city limits.

Once the ordinance is in place, the city can apply for a permit from the Wyoming Game and Fish Department to allow deer reduction to take place outside of the normal hunting season.

Six residents spoke in favor of the plan initially during a council meeting April 16, detailing their own experiences with nuisance deer in town.

One man mentioned diseases deer carry, while another said traveling on Riverview Road at night is "like driving through a mine field." Michael Gard, who lives on Monroe Avenue across from Willow Creek Elementary School, said the animals make it difficult to maintain a garden.

"There were 20 deer in my yard two weeks ago," he said, adding, "What they leave and deposit is substantial."

Another local gardener, Bart Ringer, who lives on Washington Avenue, said the problem has worsened in the past several years.

"Anything that sticks out of a tomato cage is chewed off," he said.

Councilman Tim Hancock noted that Ringer's property is close to downtown Riverton, and in the past deer have mostly been an issue on the outskirts of town.

"They've really been moving up," Hancock said.

"I have them up near my house even, which is very residential. (It's) gotten, I think, worse lately. ... I do think it's something we need to get moving on."

The City of Cody also has a deer reduction program.

Logan: Will keep the council informed as building proceeds disputes and keep the council informed as the building proceeds, among other duties.

"We're making sure we do everything as transparently and above-board as possible," Logan said, speaking outside the meeting.

The agreement sets forth a monthly fee of $5,000 for Logan, for no more than 80 hours per month. It includes no benefits or vehicle, though the city will provide Logan office space for his work.

The council approved the agreement contingent on the city receiving the grant money from the state. The state will not release the funding to the city until all the private financing for the hotel side of the project is in place — and Logan will not perform any work until the grant is released.

"We're not taking a chance with the state's money or our money," he said.

Should the Clocktower Inn fail to come to fruition, the city will not incur any expenses outlined in the owner's representative agreement that the council approved.

In his letter to the mayor, Logan stated that as city administrator, he's spent a considerable amount of time working on the Clocktower project and the various agreements associated with the partnership — meaning he's familiar with all the complexities involved. The letter also cites relevant administrative and technical skills Logan has to keep the project on track.

With Logan retiring as administrator next month, he'll report directly to his successor, Zack Thorington, who takes over the city's top post next month.

Timothy Elliott Bonner

(Feb. 1, 1968 - May 3, 2019)

Timothy Elliott Bonner, 51, life-long resident of Northfield, Minnesota, died in his home on the Laura Baker campus Friday, May 3, 2019, of kidney failure. The last eight months of his life were spent in hospice care.

Tim was born to Bob and Barbara Bonner on Feb. 1, 1968. By the time he was a year old it was clear that he struggled with serious handicaps, both mental and physical, but doctors, teachers, and therapists were unable to produce a working diagnosis. When he was 8, his mother, after years of relentless study, recognized that Tim suffered from autism. Tim then became a member of the generation who introduced this disability to parents and professionals all across the country. His life remained difficult, as everyone worked to learn how to recognize and respond appropriately to the way he understood the world.

Tim lived at home with his family until the age of 20 when he moved to Laura Baker. He continued in a close and loving relationship with his parents and through them he remained a well-known member of the Northfield community. He also attended Northfield High School and spent nearly 30 years working with the people of EPIC Enterprise in Dundas. His abundant personality will be missed by hundreds of people.

Tim is survived by his parents; by his uncles and aunts: Dave and Sue Bonner of Powell, Jim and Julianne Bonner of Casper, Anne Bonner of Santa Cruz, California, and Jim and Barbara Luther of Aztec, New Mexico; and by 12 cousins. He was preceded in death by his sister Jennifer, the sunshine of the first 20 years of his life, who died in 1988.

Tim's family will always be grateful to the staff at Laura Baker, in particular the staff of Wright Cottage who cared for him so carefully and lovingly, especially the last year of his life. The family also wants to thank the many friends of Tim's life who visited him during his time in hospice.

A memorial service will be held at the First United Church of Christ in Northfield on Saturday, May 11, 2019, at 2 p.m. Visitation will begin at 1 p.m. and a reception will follow. Memorials may be directed to Laura Baker Services Association, 211 Oak St., Northfield, Minnesota 55057.

Arrangements are with the Benson & Langehough Funeral Home.

Robert (Bobby) Henry Jackson

(Dec. 5, 1973 - April 29, 2019)

Robert (Bobby) Henry Jackson passed away on April 29, 2019, surrounded by the love of his family. He was 45 years old. Bobby was born Dec. 5, 1973, in Toledo, Ohio, to Gale "Zeke" and Beverly (Sturdevant) Jackson.

Bobby married Sonja Kropatch in 1996. They divorced after 15 years of marriage but remained close friends and co-parents to their children, Trevor and Samantha.

In 2011, Bobby met Jessica Brunotte. He loved her and her daughter Lillianna, and in 2014, they had a daughter of their own, Adalynn Grayce. Together they were a family until his recent passing. Bobby took pride in being a great father and would do anything for his children.

Bobby lived in Wyoming his entire life. His childhood years were spent in Casper, and in his adult years, he called Cody home. He loved the Bighorn Mountains. He was the happiest when he was hunting, fishing, or camping with friends and family. He spent as much time as possible outdoors.

Bobby previously owned a small business in Cody and worked many years in heating and air-conditioning. He was also an extremely talented woodworker. Bobby was preceded in death by his maternal and paternal grandparents.

Big Horn Ankle and Foot

Older Feet Deserve Special Care

Living a long and satisfactory life can have many rewards. Unfortunately, some things that may come with the later years are not rewards... and for some people foot trouble is one of these.

For years, your feet have been bearing twice your weight when you walk and up to five times your weight when you run. That normal abuse, plus damage from wearing ill-fitting shoes, can show up as problems like corns and calluses or brittle, bruised toenails. Also, aging feet are more vulnerable to infection, fractures, skin problems and deformities like bunions and hammertoes.

Your feet have carried you through life, and they deserve a visit to my office for a thorough examination.

In the meantime, give your feet some TLC by wearing shoes with plenty of padding and by replacing worn heels. If you go barefoot, keep in mind that a minor cut may easily become infected. Strengthen your feet with regular exercise; any walking as you do housework is beneficial.

Don't let foot pain keep you from being busy and independent. Schedule an appointment with me to give your feet a treat.

Cody teen dies at Buffalo Bill Dam after jumping from railing on Sunday

A 13-year-old Cody Middle School student died Sunday after jumping off the Buffalo Bill Dam. The Park County Sheriff's Office described the incident as an apparent suicide.

In a Monday news release, the sheriff's office said the teen had been at the Buffalo Bill Dam Visitor's Center with his family "when he climbed up onto the railing on the east side of the dam and leaped some 350 feet into the Shoshone River."

The incident was reported to the sheriff's office shortly before 4:30 p.m., with deputies and an ambulance from Cody Regional Health immediately responding. The boy's body was recovered around 7 p.m. by members of the Park County Search & Rescue Swift Water Team. The name of the deceased was not released.

Following the death, Park County School District No. 6 has established a crisis team of counselors at both Cody Middle School and Cody High School for students and staff in need of additional support.

On Monday morning, Cody Middle School leaders informed students that a fellow student had passed away on Sunday and said that counseling is available. School officials also sent a message to parents.

"During this time we ask that you support your child and the school and if you feel your child needs any extra support, please contact our counselors..." Cody Middle School leaders wrote. "We would also ask that you not allow your child to engage in any rumors or possible misinformation that may spread with an event of this nature."

The sheriff's office said Monday that it's continuing to investigate the death.

In addition to the counseling being offered through the Cody school system, there are multiple resources for people who are struggling with thoughts of suicide or who know someone who might be. Help is available 24/7 via the U.S. National Suicide Prevention Lifeline at 1-800-273-8255 or by texting "WYO" to 741-741 for the Crisis Text Line; the lifeline is a national network of local crisis centers that provides free and confidential emotional support to people in suicidal crisis or emotional distress.

If you or someone you know is in immediate danger of harming themselves, please call 911, the Wyoming Department of Health says.

Leaving the Hill to return to the mountains

SEN. ENZI WORKED HARD FOR WYOMING

For someone who never planned on getting into politics, Sen. Mike Enzi has spent much of his life working for the people of Wyoming.

It's not the path he expected. Growing up, Enzi enjoyed hiking and fishing in Yellowstone National Park and wanted to become a park ranger. The outdoors beckoned Enzi again later in life, while he was recovering from open-heart surgery in the mid '90s.

Enzi recalls thinking in church one Sunday: "I've put in lots of public service. I've had this heart problem. It's about time that I got to hunt and fish."

He says he then got this nudge: "I didn't keep you alive to hunt and fish."

While Wyomingites understand the appeal of spending more time outdoors, our state is better for the fact that Enzi chose a different route — one with fewer fishing trips and countless flights between Wyoming and Washington, D.C.

Drawing on his experience as the mayor of Gillette, a Wyoming state legislator and a shoe salesman, Enzi was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1996, replacing outgoing Sen. Al Simpson of Cody. Enzi went on to be reelected three times. But his many years in the Senate will soon come to an end, as the 75-year-old announced Saturday that he will not run again in 2020.

The longtime senator will be missed, both for his work in Washington and around the Cowboy State.

"My biggest job, as it turns out, is to solve individual problems people are having with the federal government," Enzi said, adding that he and his staff have worked on some 14,000 such problems for Wyoming residents.

One of those issues involved helping a Northwest College student from Mexico who came to the U.S. as a young child and didn't have American citizenship. The student eventually became a U.S. citizen and is now a successful businessman, something that "could have never happened if Sen. Enzi's office hadn't intervened," said a speaker during the Women and Allies March in Cody earlier this year.

In an era of divisiveness, we appreciate Enzi's efforts to find common ground in D.C. He often talks about his "80 percent rule," where you focus on the 80 percent that can be agreed upon, instead of the 20 percent where you disagree.

Over the years, we haven't always agreed with the senator, but we appreciate that he tried to focus on areas of consensus.

That approach led Enzi to find bipartisan support for his bills over the years.

"My first bill passed unanimously. The last bill — so far — passed unanimously," the Republican said Saturday. "Most of my bills have 15 or less in opposition which is very bipartisan."

We hope that Enzi will continue working across the aisle in his remaining year and a half in the Senate — and that other lawmakers will begin doing the same.

But that means they'll have to put public service ahead of personal gain or the political spotlight. The truth is, bipartisanship work doesn't draw much attention, especially in today's society when bickering politicians dominate headlines.

By contrast, Enzi's service has often been understated and his tone collegial.

An opinion piece in The Hill described Enzi as "a hard-working, no nonsense, substantive doer."

"He is the opposite of the flamboyant model that is so in vogue today," wrote Judd Gregg, a Republican and former U.S. senator, in the April column. "... we can all take some solace that in these cloudy days of excessive partisanship and declining good governance there is a Mike Enzi still trudging around the Senate."

While he may soon be trudging through Wyoming's streams and mountains, we can be thankful for the many years he has spent working on behalf of our state.

A tribute to the woman who raised the man I married

I've been thinking a lot about my mother-in-law, Wilma Olson, who would have turned 94 this month.

Wilma lived a life of service to her family. Her mother died when she was 14, and that was when she left school to take care of her father and younger brothers and sisters. She recalled baking biscuits for her father every morning before he went to work and cleaning the house while her siblings were in school.

She married my father-in-law, Edward Olson, when she was 17, and from that time forward, her life was spent caring for him and for their four sons. Pleasing her family by providing a clean home and good meals made her happy.

Wilma and I had our similarities and our differences.

Wilma was an immaculate housekeeper; I'm definitely not.

Wilma loved to cook; for me, cooking is mostly a means to an end.

I cherish family photos, traditions and reunions; she felt less need for those.

But our differences ended when it came to our love for her second son, and my husband, Gary, who has gone through life without sight. I believe the love, devotion and inspiration my mother-in-law used when raising Gary helped mold him into the man who became the love of my life.

Raising a child with a disability is a challenge at any time. In the 1950s, when institutionalization was a common answer to those challenges, Wilma was determined to raise her son as a "normal" child. She ignored her friends' advice to make him wear a helmet everywhere he went and, instead, taught him to ride a bike.

Friends advised her to avoid moving furniture to prevent confusion for Gary. Not Wilma. She didn't consider a good cleaning job complete unless she moved the furniture. Gary found the coffee table with his shins on many occasions and once, Wilma stopped him just as he was going to sit on a large potted plant in a corner, where a chair used to be.

Wilma resisted the inclination to eliminate his risk for injury — and thereby to limit his horizons and his quality of life. She taught him to take care of himself. She taught him always to do his best.

When he developed an avid interest in the lapidary hobby — grinding and polishing agates, jaspers, obsidian and other semi-precious stones for jewelry — Gary's parents turned away from the obvious response, that it could be a hazard to his safety. Instead, they learned about the equipment he would need and determined that he would be able to operate it safely if taught to do so. Then they purchased his first rock-grinding and polishing unit and helped him learn how to use it independently.

It was too dangerous for Gary to use an alcohol lamp to melt the wax that attached the stones to a wooden handle he used to grind and polish them. So, Gary's mother took the time to do that for him until a safer method was available.

Wilma was Gary's chief rock inspector, critiquing each stone, or cabochon, to make sure it had no scratches and was polished to perfection. If it wasn't, he went back to work on it until the polish was flawless. Wilma then mounted the shining stones into jewelry, which she helped Gary sell, thereby providing him with spending money.

His mother's support of his hobby proved to be a boon to Gary, who still turns almost daily to his lapidary work when he needs to relax or ponder about life or a problem, or just spend time doing something he enjoys. When another man might go out hiking, hunting or fishing, Gary goes to his lapidary shop.

Wilma taught Gary to be a productive member of society, rather than to be a drain on it. She taught him to be a good student and to be an achiever. She sent him to the Lions Summer School for the Blind on Casper Mountain the summer before his senior year in high school with the advice, "You know how to do most of the things you need to be independent. Now, you need to learn how to sign your name."

That led to my opportunity to get to know Gary: I was a volunteer at the camp that summer. I was given teaching aids and assigned the task of helping Gary feel the shapes of the letters in his name, then to teach him what movements he needed to use with a pen to duplicate those letters on paper to sign his name.

Wilma's insistence that he be a good student and that he learn to sign his name proved to be two very important keys to overcoming hurdles and challenges and to reaching milestones that many blind people never achieve, such as taking care of himself, marrying and supporting his family.

Despite the many challenges he faced, he earned a bachelor's degree at the University of Wyoming and a master's degree at the University of Northern Colorado, opening the doors to a career that has provided for his family's needs.

Gary has had to sign his name almost daily to letters, forms and other documents as an employee of the Wyoming Department of Education, serving blind and partially sighted individuals in the Big Horn Basin, and in his previous employment as a case manager for developmentally disabled adults. Wilma's foresight of that need was prophetic.

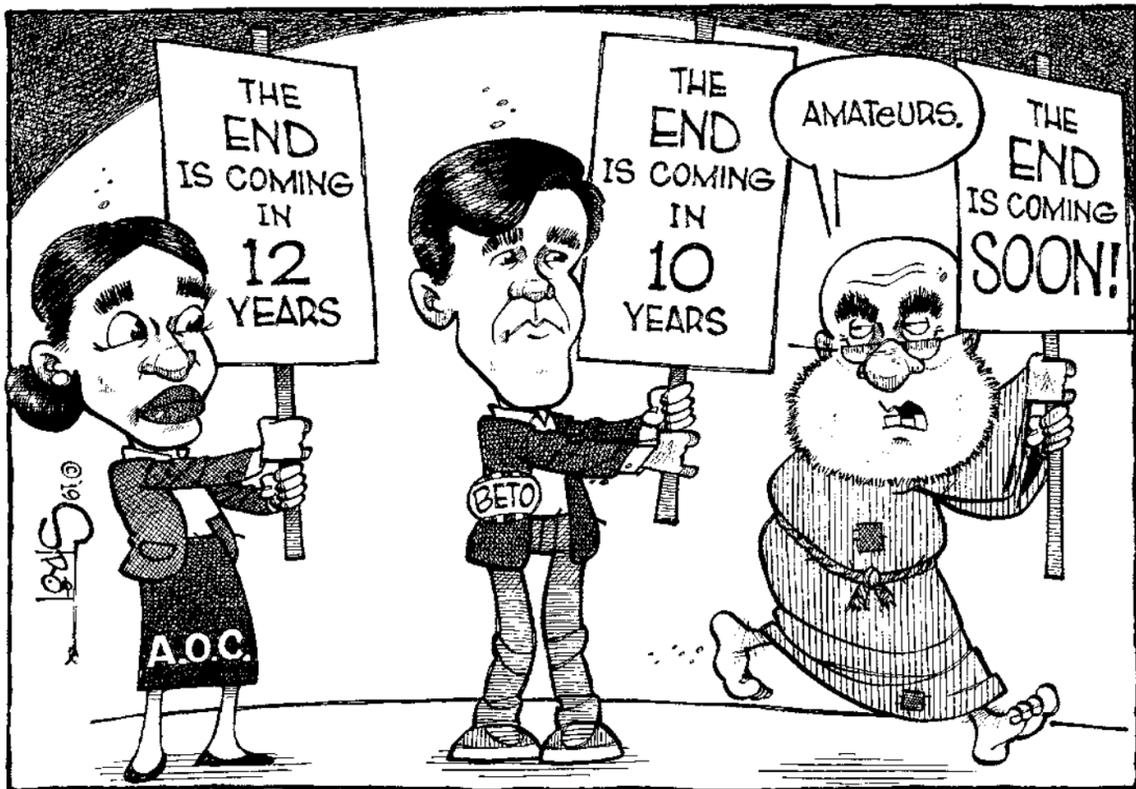

When I first met Gary, he was part of a group of youth, all of whom were blind or had limited vision. Although he was blind as well, Gary stood out among them as a person with charm, a good sense of humor, a delightful personality and a remarkable ability to be "normal." I know that much of what I saw that first day, and what eventually attracted me to him as my future husband and the eternal love of my life, was due to the influence and guidance of his mother.

For that, I will always owe her a debt of gratitude.

Thanks, mom, for everything.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bear baiting is not fair chase

Dear Editor:

Recently I attended a fund-raising event at the Broadway Theater in Rock Springs for the Western Bear Foundation (WBF), of Cody. There were about 70 people in attendance. There were several raffles, an auction for some beautiful prints, and free snacks and a cash bar.

The big issue of the event was the use of bear baiting as an aid in hunting. This is the practice of having a barrel, with a small opening and containing aromatic foods, like old donuts, preset in the wilds at the end of a clear line of fire. WBF speakers demonized environmental and animal rights groups, who have filed an intent to sue the government in order to stop this practice. The speeches, however, had an evangelical quality to them, as though WBF indisputably held the moral high ground of an aggrieved victim.

For example, speaker Joe Kondelis, WBF's president, harped on and on about how "the public" needed to be educated — meaning they are uneducated. If we were to listen to Kondelis, however, we could become blessedly educated. According to WBF, environmentalists are spreading misinformation among "the public." But might it be that environmentalists are also "the public," and have a right to say what they may? Is there any value to what little education environmentalists might have?

Kondelis also seemed to take it upon himself to speak for "state wildlife agencies and their professional biologists and experts, as the rightfully intended party to make wildlife policies," and that it is morally wrong, and maybe even unconstitutional, for the judiciary to interfere in matters of hunting. Are all individuals, who work for wildlife agencies, in agreement with WBF? Some were in attendance, but, as usual, they didn't say anything — are they scared?

According to Kondelis, environmental extremists are inappropriately getting in the way of "the public," now meaning WBF, and a strong tradition of bear baiting. Looked at linearly, both ends of an argument are extremes, and WBF is certainly at one of them, making WBF extremist, too. As for a bear-baiting "tradition," WBF would have you believe that only beneficial and equitable results come about from baiting, for both bears and people. This is because, a little contrarily, the bears end up dead or maimed, and some humans can form a pretty superior image of themselves.

The huffy environmentalists, WBF complains, oppose baiting animals as contrary to the doctrine of "fair chase" and "tradition." Here, WBF surely has two good points, so let's have bear baiters hunt with only a sharp stick and a rock, and in the nude like our ancestors. This would put "tradition" back into things. Simply pull the bear's head out of the bait barrel, and have a more or less equal fight. "Sportsmen" and "sportswomen" could then rightly call what they do a sport, because a sport involves opponents who have an equal chance of winning.

There was a short film showing the step by step drama of a bear-baited black bear hunt, though it was nothing like I've just proposed above. Instead, to background sounds of a breeze and mystical instrumental chords, and speaking in a hushed conspiratorial tone, the narrator, decked out in trim paramilitary clothing and expensive gear, allows us to see, using powerful optics, the bear on a distant mountainside. We drive in a spotless truck some distance to within 20 minutes easy walking of where the bear is struggling to extract goodies from a bait barrel.

The narrator slowly and methodically gets into position and aims his high-powered rifle, from which we now view the bear through an expensive scope. We concentrate hard and take deep breaths. We are dramatic, holy, and wise. The trigger is slowly, expertly, pulled, and the bear pops up in astonishment! It runs this way and that, till shortly exhausting itself and falling face forward into the grass. It heaves once or twice, then stops moving. We cautiously, yet reverentially, advance towards it. The hunter kneels before it, he reaches out to touch the great bear, he sensuously pushes his hand from the front of the bear to the back, pushing deeper and deeper into its fur and body in a show of dominance over the now submissive wild animal. Now law and order, or at least obedience, can prevail over wild and dangerous nature, as personified in the bear.

After several delays, the Wyoming Game and Fish Department is close to completing a series of improvements to the Renner Reservoir that lies south of Hyattville. The reservoir will be home to a revitalized bass fishery. Photo courtesy Wyoming Game and Fish

REHABILITATION OF HYATTVILLE RESERVOIR NEARS COMPLETION

A project focused on restoring the bass fishery in Renner Reservoir, south of Hyattville, is near completion. The Wyoming Game and Fish Department recently stocked 2,000 fathead minnows in the 70-acre reservoir. The minnows will serve as forage fish for bass that will be stocked in a few months, after the reservoir completely refills with water.

Historically, the reservoir produced quality largemouth bass fishing and was popular with local and traveling anglers alike. However, the bass fishery was lost following a near complete winter-kill in 2014. Over the last three years, Game and Fish has pulled out all the tools in the toolbox to bring this fishery back.

While the loss of the bass fishery was unfortunate, the Game and Fish says it presented an opportunity to address limitations that fisheries biologists had been struggling to manage over the last decade. For years, the reservoir was plagued by winterkill events and dense vegetation, which unraveled the fishery and stunted the bass and sunfish population.

The rehabilitation process began in summer of 2016, when the dam was breached to drain the reservoir. Fisheries Biologist Joe Skorupski said draining the reservoir accomplished several things.

“First, it removed the stunted sunfish population that thrived in the reservoir due to shallow habitat and dense vegetation,” Skorupski said. “Secondly, it allowed access to replace the outflow structure and add a water feature at the inflow pipe and accomplish dirt work to improve fish habitat.”

The project has not been without challenges.

“Due to unforeseen logistical issues and challenges, the project has taken longer than expected,” Skorupski said.

“When Game and Fish embarked on this project in 2016, it was estimated to take approximately two years. We appreciate anglers’ patience throughout the project and acknowledge that the time lost at Renner has been difficult.”

Several natural springs were discovered under the reservoir, meaning it took much longer than expected for the area to dry. Some areas never dried out completely and ultimately affected the extent to which Game and Fish could modify and improve fish habitat.

Despite challenges, Game and Fish Habitat and Access crews were able to dig out a deep pool near the casting platform and create a channel from the boat ramp to the inlet structure to increase depth. They were also able to create a water fountain, which will improve oxygen levels and reduce the chance of winterkill. Once the dirt work was completed, crews fixed the outlet structure, which hadn’t been functional for more than a decade. The new structure provides flexibility to change water levels, allowing for better management of vegetation and wintering conditions for fish.

Last fall, repairs to the dam were completed, a new concrete boat ramp was poured and the reservoir began filling.

In an effort to jump start the fishery, Game and Fish planned to transplant catchable sized bass from another water body, in addition to stocking smaller bass, but concerns with disease scrapped that idea.

Instead, “fingerling bass from a hatchery will be stocked within a few months,” Skorupski said.

Despite challenges and setbacks, the Game and Fish said the end result of the project will be a healthy and more stable bass population in Renner Reservoir for anglers to enjoy.

‘We appreciate anglers’ patience throughout the project and acknowledge that the time lost at Renner has been difficult.’

Half-dozen locals named to CWD group

Wyoming has formed a new working group to come up with ways to help the state deal with chronic wasting disease (CWD).

Wyoming Game and Fish Department Director Brian Nesvik recently appointed 32 people to the working group, including six people from Park County.

The department said the CWD group represents a diverse range of backgrounds, professions and interests from across Wyoming. They’ll develop recommendations to revise the Game and Fish’s CWD management plan — a process that, in addition to the working group’s meetings — will also include a series of public meetings around the state.

CWD is widely distributed across Wyoming and is fatal to deer, elk and moose and is found in new areas each year.

Working group members will explore scientific, social, economic and policy information related to CWD and deer and elk management and ways to minimize the disease among those populations.

Among the local members of the new group are: Andrew Pils of the Shoshone National Forest in Cody, representing the federal government; Jim Freeburn and Karinthia Harrison of Cody, both representing the general public; Park County Commissioner Joe Tilden of Cody, representing local government; Millie Copper of Clark, representing sportspeople; and Cody Regional Wildlife Supervisor Dan Smith, representing the Game and Fish.

Other members will represent scientists, outfitters, landowners/agricultural producers, conservation groups, the Wyoming Legislature and the Game and Fish Commission.

“We had a strong interest from around the state,” said Scott Edberg, acting chief of the Game and Fish wildlife division. “The individuals selected represent diverse perspectives and we appreciate their willingness to contribute their time, thoughts and recommendations to help revise our CWD plan.”

The working group is scheduled to meet for the first time on July 23-25 in Lander and then meet several times throughout the year and into 2020.

Local turkey season underway

It’s springtime in the Big Horn Basin and turkey season has arrived. The spring season in Hunt Area 4 began April 13 and is open through May 20. With the exception of Yellowtail Wildlife Habitat Management Area, Hunt Area 4 is a general season in which any wild male turkey may be harvested with a general license. To hunt turkeys on Yellowtail, hunters must apply for and draw one of 50 Type 1 licenses available for the area.

Turkey hunting is a wonderful way to enjoy the spring in Wyoming and safety should always be a top priority, the Wyoming Game and Fish Department says.

“Turkey hunters should be especially cognizant of a cardinal rule of safe firearms handling, to be sure of your target and what is beyond,” said Lovell Game Warden Dillon Herman. “While turkey hunters are not required to wear fluorescent orange in the field, it’s a good idea to have some orange in your pack to wear walking to and from your hunting spot, especially after harvesting a bird.”

Hunters are reminded that legal shooting hours for turkey hunting is one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. Once a turkey is harvested, the hunter must detach, sign and notch out the month and day of harvest on the carcass coupon before leaving the site of the kill.

Nearly $7 million worth of area highway work approved

Of the $14.4 million worth of contracts that the Wyoming Transportation Commission awarded last month, nearly half of the money — some $6.7 million — is heading to projects in the Big Horn Basin.

Among the seven contracts awarded at the commission's April 18 meeting, three were for road and bridge upgrades within Park, Big Horn and Washakie counties.

The largest local contract went to Mountain Construction Co. of Lovell, which will receive $3.5 million to re-surface 6 miles of U.S. Highway 16 between Worland and Ten Sleep. Crews will level the road, put down an overlay, then chip seal the surface. They will also replace old guardrail, with a contract completion date of June 30, 2020.

The commission also awarded S & S Builders of Gillette a $2 million contract for bridge rehabilitation on six structures in Big Horn and Park counties. S & S will perform an overlay on the bridge decks to improve the surface. They will also pave and replace some of the approach slabs. The completion date on that contract is Oct. 31, 2020.

Finally, the transportation commission signed off on a $1.2 million contract with Wilson Bros. Construction, of Cowley, to flatten slopes between Manderson and Basin on U.S. Highway 16/20. That work must be completed by Oct. 31, 2019.

- 12:17 p.m. A cat was reported to have been hit by a car on Queens Boulevard and was still alive. The cat was taken to a veterinarian.
- 1:10 p.m. Officers responded to a report of a vehicle that had been sitting in the turn lane at East Coulter Avenue/South Hamilton Street for a half-hour. The vehicle had ran out of gas and officers assisted the driver in pushing the vehicle to the gas pumps.

AFTER 42 YEARS IN PUBLIC OFFICE, ENZI TO RETIRE

BY PATRICK FILBIN

Throughout his 40-plus-year career as a politician, U.S. Sen. Mike Enzi said he never intended to be a politician at all.

Instead, he wanted to be a leader in his community. Enzi wanted to make a difference for a city that was growing faster than it could handle, a state that had a unique set of economic challenges and eventually a country that oftentimes has a tough time working across party lines.

Through it all, the Wyoming Republican said he always tried to keep the people of Gillette, Campbell County and Wyoming at the forefront of his efforts.

At a small gathering Saturday morning at Gillette City Hall with family, friends, current and former staff members and a small group of press, Enzi announced that he will retire when his fourth term in the Senate is up in 2020.

"I am an advocate for Gillette and Campbell County and Wyoming," he said during his speech. "I never intended to get into politics. But I was mayor for eight years during the first Gillette boom. I got to work with some amazing people who didn't know what couldn't be done, so we did it. We laid down a foundation for the future."

When it's all said and done at the end of his term in 2020, Enzi, 75, will have held an elected office for 42 years: eight as mayor of Gillette, 10 as a Wyoming state legislator and 24 as a U.S. Senator.

Enzi served two terms as Gillette mayor beginning in 1975. At the time, it was a booming town that couldn't keep up with the demands of residents.

He wasn't even thinking about running for mayor at the time. He and his wife Diana, co-owners of NZ Shoes, moved to the community in 1969, just a week after they married.

There were just over 7,000 people in Gillette in 1970, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. By the time Enzi's second term as mayor ended in 1982, Gillette had more than doubled to 16,343 people.

He helped expand the city's electrical and water capacity, helped dig a landfill and got money for a water project with a $22 million loan.

In 1976, Enzi championed an optional 1 percent sales tax and was a key player in getting it passed for the first time in Campbell County. It's passed every election since and has been a key factor in the growth and progressiveness of Gillette.

Enzi went on to serve a decade in the Wyoming Legislature, where he earned a reputation for being a fiscally smart legislator and chaired the Revenue Committee.

It was around the tail end of his time as a state lawmaker that Enzi had open-heart surgery. Still, people around the state and beyond encouraged him to run for the seat left open by U.S. Sen. Alan Simpson.

"I had been saying no, feeling sorry for myself," Enzi said Saturday. "In church my wandering mind said, 'I've put in lots of public service. I've had this heart problem. It's about time that I got to hunt and fish.'"

Then he felt a nudge. Enzi said a voice told him, "I didn't keep you alive to hunt and fish."

Enzi left church that Sunday in tears, entered a crowded Senate race with nine candidates in 1996 and came out on top.

GETTING WORK DONE
During Enzi's retirement announcement, he touched on several of the accomplishments he's most proud of.

Those include his first-ever bill, passed unanimously by the Senate, that preserved property rights for Campbell County people who had coal-bed methane on their property. At the time, the federal government had decided methane was part of the coal and wanted royalties returned.

Enzi championed Sen. Ted Kennedy's Needlestick Bill that promoted safer practices for discarding needles, secured abandoned mine money for Wyoming, improving mine safety, Sen. Mike Enzi was first elected to the U.S. Senate in 1996, replacing former Sen. Al Simpson.

played a part in fixing No Child Left Behind and helped pass the Tax Cut and Jobs Act in 2017.

Enzi said he and his staff have helped solve about 14,000 problems for Wyoming residents.

Marjorie Rainwater, a long-time Gillette resident and old friend of Enzi's, was the first person to get a seat for Saturday's announcement. She remembers first meeting Enzi at church, during her first week in Gillette in 1975.

"I was reading the newspapers that week trying to get myself acclimated with the town," Rainwater said. "I recognized his name from the papers and asked him if he was related to the mayor."

"As a matter of fact," he told her, "I am the mayor."

"He's done such wonderful things for the city, this state and our country," Rainwater said.

The senator said he and his wife Diana often drive 500 miles across the state when working over three-day weekends.

"We live out of a suitcase on both ends. I'm not complaining," Enzi said. "I chose the job and have always worked at a job and was taught to do a job so well that I would be proud to put my name on it."

As his term winds down, Enzi said he wants to focus on getting control of the national debt and continuing work on several small business initiatives while protecting and diversifying Wyoming's jobs.

"I don't want to be burdened with the distractions of a campaign," he said. "After this term I will find other ways to serve."

Talking with a small group of reporters after his speech, Enzi said that he chose Gillette to announce his retirement because he wanted to end his run where it began.

After 24 years, Enzi will finally get to do what he thought he would with his children.

"I was able to see my kids grow up before I went in the Senate," he said. "Now I want some grandkid time."

Grandkid time and retirement will surely include some hunting and fishing.

overnight and there was quite a bit of ice.”

About 400 vehicles entered through the East Gate Friday.

“It felt busier last year, but that’s probably because it was my first year,” Perry said.

By 2 p.m., as the sun warmed the pavement, all the restrictions were cleared.

“Safety is the number one priority through the pass,” said park spokesperson Linda Veress.

Traffic picked up over the weekend, Perry said, and visitors were excited to see grizzlies on both sides of the entrance.

On Sunday a grizzly visited the property right next to the entrance, thrilling those moving through.

The snow pack wasn’t as impressive as in previous years — between 4 and 6 feet in most places — but a fresh layer of powder made for beautiful scenery the 26 miles to Sedge Bay. Some pullouts and restrooms were still closed, waiting to be cleared. At Indian Pond, the pavement was stripped and visitors drove on wet dirt through 3 miles of road construction, near the newly refurbished Fishing Bridge.

Construction in the area will continue through next year, depending on weather. There will be short delays getting through the area but there won’t be hard closures, Veress said. The East Entrance Road closed early last year on Oct. 15, forcing local visitors to enter through the Northeast Entrance to get to the rest of the park.

The South Entrance to West Thumb, Lake Village to West Thumb, West Thumb to Old Faithful (Craig Pass) and Tower Junction to Tower Falls is scheduled to open Friday. Dunraven Pass and the Beartooth Highway are scheduled to open May 24. Veress cautioned open roads may close temporarily due to inclement weather and other issues.

Boisseau and McIntosh weren’t worried about construction delays, but didn’t have enough time to do anything other than buy their pass, hit the nearest facilities and head back east.

Still, “it was totally worth it,” Boisseau said. “It was a beautiful morning and the shooting stars that night were amazing. I’m happy to get my pass so we can come up as much as possible.”

The walkway near Fishing Bridge was still under several feet of snow on the Park’s opening day.

Helicopter: Plant manager warns copter’s airwash will kick up a lot of dust after that, the new units will be hoisted onto the roof. Before noon, the helicopter lands, and crews will remove the rigging used to hoist the RTUs. By 12:30 p.m., the Chinook will leave Powell.

Of course, there are contingencies built into the plan. But the college has carried out this operation for another RTU on Trapper Gym in 2017, and Billings Air Service was very punctual.

“The Billings Air schedule is aggressive,” Plute said.

There’s a lot of parts that have to fall into place, even if the weather cooperates. Last week, Plute was on the phone with the RTU manufacturer, who said the delivery of the new units would be delayed.

At a planning meeting last week with various contractors involved in the operation, Plute discussed the delay and said he went all the way to the company’s president to try to explain that if the units are not ready for the operation, it could cost the college over $20,000 to reschedule with the air service.

Beyond the expense, Plute said the air service company’s availability is so limited, they’d have a lot of trouble rescheduling. He took a deep breath and said, “I’m seeking my inner calm, my patience.”

College officials planned to execute this operation last summer, intending to remove just one of the units on Orendorff. However, the helicopters are used during the fire season to fight forest fires. When the woods started burning, the feds jumped NWC’s contract, leaving the college to wait another year.

Over that time, a second unit developed problems. With it having to be replaced soon, NWC decided to replace them both now to save some money down the road.

The operation might draw an audience to watch the copters move the RTUs. Plute is asking people to stay outside the barriers and protect their eyes. The copter’s airwash will kick up a lot of dust.

Once the Chinook is gone, there will still be work to do: Other contractors must disconnect the old units — which requires draining refrigerant according to EPA regulations — and hook up the new ones.

PHS SOCCER WINS TWO ON ROAD

AIMS FOR TWO SEED IN 3A WEST WITH WINS OVER LANDER, PINEDALE

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

With a 3-1 win at Lander on Friday and a 3-2 overtime nail-biter at Pinedale on Saturday, the Powell High School boys' soccer team has moved into the No. 2 spot in the conference with just two regular-season games remaining.

"We were glad to go on the road and get two wins back-to-back," said PHS head coach Dave Gilliatt. "That's always a challenge, no matter who you're playing."

After a quiet start to his senior season, Panther forward Rob Sessions has found his groove of late; last year's leading scorer notched a goal and an assist against the Tigers, and scored twice against the Wranglers, including the game winner in overtime.

"He's [Sessions] has flipped a switch," Gilliatt said. "I think he's bought into the team system, the team mentality. As a result, he's less predictable. He's making quality passes, which opens up the opportunity for him to take quality shots. He's a good player; he's peaking at the right time."

It will be another busy week for the Panthers (10-4, 5-3 in 3A West), who host Lander on Thursday, then travel to Riverton on Saturday. Thursday's game is Senior Night, where Sessions and teammates Steven Shopa and Dylan Lowery will be honored for their efforts.

"I've got three seniors, so I plan on starting those guys [against Lander]," Gilliatt said. "They're all very capable players, so we'll be fine there."

PANTHERS 3, LANDER 1

With a 5-7 record going into Friday's contest, Lander has proven itself dangerous to underestimate — something Cody learned the hard way Saturday.

"Despite their record, Lander is a good team," Gilliatt said. "They have good players and they definitely have some strengths. We couldn't overlook them in any way, so we stuck to our game plan and the guys executed it really well."

Sessions scored the first goal of the game after a couple of near-misses on net to begin the game.

"I was proud of Rob [Sessions], because he had a couple of attempts where he looked a little rushed, trying to do too much with not the best opportunity," Gilliatt said. "In his third opportunity, he just kind of slowed it down, created some space for himself, and shot it to the left side of the box, over the keeper. It was a good goal."

Kaleb Brown found the back of the net for the Panthers a short time later, off an assist by Sessions.

"On the second goal, he [Sessions] dribbled down the field and crossed it into the left-hand side, a real low, hard cross to Kaleb Brown," Gilliatt said.

PHS GOLF TEAMS WINDING DOWN SPRING SEASON

HIGGINS, WILSON LEAD CHARGE AT CODY INVITE

The Powell High School golf teams competed in their second-to-last tournament of the spring season Friday at the Cody Invitational at the Olive Glenn Golf Course.

George Higgins was the top Panther, carding an 85 for sixth place. Cat Wilson was the top Lady Panther on the girls' side, placing eighth with a round of 110.

"We had a cool, breezy day in Cody Friday, but it was nice to get two weeks in a row on the course for tournaments," said PHS head coach Troy Hildebrand. "We also got some players back that had missed the Powell tournament. We played OK, but for me the main goal of spring golf is to just get the players out and playing tournament golf as much as possible."

PANTHERS

For the boys, Crandell Sanders had a previous commitment that kept him from playing, but the Panthers were still able to get four boys over to Cody.

"Two of the four — Jacob Thiel and Taber Wilson — were each in either their first or second tournament ever, so it was good experience for them," Hildebrand said.

Higgins paced the Panthers by carding an 85, good enough for sixth place.

"George played very well again this week on a course that he has only seen a few times," Hildebrand said. "He shot 40-45 and played right in there with some of the top 3A golfers. He was back at it this weekend, and continues to work hard to take that next step as a tournament player."

Yogi Sullivan was second among the Panthers with a 114.

"Yogi fell victim to two very bad holes again this week, or he would be down around 105," Hildebrand said. "There are certainly more positives in his game this spring and he has the potential to be an integral part of our team next fall."

Jacob Thiel followed with a 124 in his first time competing on a course other than the Powell Golf Club.

"Jacob did a very nice job Friday," Hildebrand said. "He is certainly new to tournament golf, but each week he improves and figures out a lot about

TEAMS COMBINE TO WIN 10 EVENTS

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

The Powell High School track and field teams wrapped up the regular season strong Friday at the Cody Trackstravaganza, winning a combined 10 events on the day.

The Panthers finished first as a team, scoring 248.50 points and easily outdistancing the host team Cody, who finished with 156.50 points. Worland was third with 124 points and Lovell rounded out the quad meet in fourth with 25 points.

On the girls' side, the Lady Panthers finished second with 231.50 points, just 4.5 points behind Cody in first. Worland was third with 82.5 points, followed by Lovell in fourth with 5 points.

"It was a good way to end the season. We had a lot of good performances," said PHS head coach Scott Smith. "We've got some decisions we're still in the process of making as far as who is going to do what at regionals, which is a good thing. It's because of good competition, not lack of choices."

Prequalifying for the state meet on the girls' side was Sabrina Shoopman in the 400 meter dash. The junior finished third in the event with a time of 1:02.24, while also placing first in the 100 meter hurdles.

For the boys, Jayden Yates prequalified in the 3200 meter run, finishing second with a time of 10:21.64. Senior Dalton Woodward won the triple jump with a prequalifying distance of 41 feet, 9.75 inches, while the 4x400 relay team of Dylan Preator, Jay Cox, Aiden Jacobsen and Brody Karhu took first in a prequalifying time of 3:35.04.

3A West Regionals begin Friday in Pinedale, and Smith said the team will take this week to fine-tune a few things.

Lady Panther soccer splits with Lander, Pinedale

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

The Powell High School girls' soccer team traveled south last weekend for a two-game road swing, losing 3-1 to Lander Friday, but rebounding Saturday at Pinedale to win 2-0.

The loss to Lander may have been enough to eliminate the Lady Panthers from the postseason; coach Jack Haire's side could still sneak in, but they would need some help with just two games remaining in the regular season. Powell will host Lander Thursday, which will include senior night festivities; they will conclude the regular season Friday on the road at Riverton.

"I'm going to work on enjoying the time that I have with this group of girls," Haire said. "Coach Stan Hedges and I have been with this group for five years now. We're just going to keep working on building each other up, lifting each other up and encouraging each other to be better — better at soccer, better at life, better students. That's what I'm going to look forward to this week."

LANDER 3, LADY PANTHERS 1

Due to weather, Lander (7-7, 3-5 in the 3A West) was the only team in 3A West that Powell had yet to face this season.

"Lander was better than we expected," Haire said of Powell's 3-1 loss. "It was kind of the same old story — we were playing decent soccer, but not enough to want it as bad as Lander wanted it."

With offensive threat Jaya Smith still missing in action due to injury, Haire's other attackers were forced to step up their game, though the Lady Tigers proved stingy on defense. Lander got on the board first with three minutes remaining in the first half, but the Lady Panthers responded: Michele Wagner tied the game off an assist by Jordan Woodford. The half ended with the teams knotted at 1-1.

"The girls put in a great effort in that first half," Haire said. "Jordan Woodford made a nice pass into the box, and Michele Wagner popped right up the middle and put the ball right out of the keeper's reach with about 10 seconds left in the half. So we went in tied, which was pretty exciting."

The second half was all Lander, however, as the home team came out looking to put the game away. The Lady Tigers scored the game-winner six minutes into the half, then added an insurance goal 10 minutes after that. Powell continued to play hard, but couldn't convert their scoring opportunities. The game, and perhaps the Lady Panther's state tournament hopes, ended with a 3-1 loss.

"... It's not like we got down or pouted or anything," Haire said. "When you lose to a better team, it's hard to get down on yourself. We played decent, but we do have to improve to keep up with those teams. We feel like we're competing with them; we just can't stay with them."

Powell will have a shot at redemption Thursday, as they host Lander in the final home game of the regular season at Panther Stadium; it's a makeup of a game that had to be rescheduled due to weather last month. Haire said the key will be to learn from the mistakes made on Friday.

"We just have to have our first and second touch working," Haire said. "Besides the girl with the ball, we need to have players in available spots. We need to find open spaces on the pitch to be helpful to the team."

LADY PANTHERS 2, PINEDALE 0

With the pressure of a state tournament berth seemingly off the table following Friday's loss to Lander, the Lady Panthers went into Saturday's contest at Pinedale like a team just looking to enjoy the moment.

"It was almost like a relief off of us going into that game a little bit," Haire said. "So when we went into Pinedale, we were just attacking. It was fun to play them. We were evenly matched in a lot of ways."

The Lady Wranglers (1-10-1, 0-8 in 3A West) struggled to corral Wagner, who had seven shots in the contest — including one on a breakaway that just missed the mark.

"I don't know how the keeper got to it," Haire said. "She laid out and her foot got just enough of it to knock it away."

Wagner did finally convert, scoring the only goal of the first half off an assist by Kayla Kolpitcke to give Powell a 1-0 lead at the break. The Lady Panthers kept the pressure on to start the second half, with freshman Kabrie Cannon scoring the first varsity goal of her career.

"Kabrie [Cannon] has had a few games where she's had some pretty good looks without being able to sink one in, so it was nice to see her finally get one," Haire said.

Any worries Haire may have had about a letdown following the Lander game were extinguished with the 2-0 win. He praised his team for going into the contest with smiles and upbeat attitudes.

"Kayla Kolpitcke was just a workhorse, of course," Haire said. "Defensively, we got our shutout; Mattie Larsen had 15 saves. Maddie Fields had a heck of a game."

Haire also praised senior Jalie Timmons, who was used as more of an attacker (mid/forward) than a defender in this contest.

"She's having just a heck of a season," Haire said of Timmons. "She just puts in an effort every game. She doesn't ask to come out, she doesn't need to be subbed. She's a strong girl."

The trip home was a jovial one, but Haire said the team realizes there's still work to be done. State may be out of reach, but he'd like to see the Lady Panthers finish strong.

"Everyone was just in a happy mood, and it was a nice, long bus ride home," he said. "We're in good spirits, and the girls are looking forward to playing Lander again Thursday and Riverton Friday."

getting around the course efficiently."

In his first-ever tournament, Taber Wilson rounded out the Panthers, carding a 128. Hildebrand said Wilson did a good job of figuring things out and posting a score he can continue to improve on.

"He [Wilson] has come a long way since just last fall, and he seems to have a genuine interest in golf," Hildebrand said. "If he'll put some time in this summer, I believe he could see some rapid improvement."

LADY PANTHERS

Cat Wilson was the top golfer for the Lady Panthers, carding a 110.

"Cat had a couple of holes where she struggled, but overall she played well Friday in her first tournament round in a month," Hildebrand said. "She is very strong and every round of experience that she gets will pay off next fall."

Bailey Kennedy followed Wilson with a 139, and Hildebrand said he has high hopes for a bright future for the young golfer.

"Bailey has really improved this spring and really had some great things going before we ran into this stretch of poor weather and spring break," he said. "She has been taking some additional lessons, and I definitely see the benefits for her. A good summer of work will be essential for her."

The PHS golf teams will close out the spring season with a tournament Friday in Lander. Hildebrand called the Lander course, "a good, challenging course" that will give the team a final look at where the teams stand heading into the summer and fall.

"The success of our team has a lot more to do with how much they are able to play during the summer than right now," Hildebrand said. "The weather and other commitments as school comes to a close always make the spring season somewhat of a work in progress."

PHS b. soccer: Powell will square off with Lander Tigers again this Thursday

"It was a clinical finish with the inside of his [Brown's] right foot. It was a good goal."

Jesse Trotter scored the final goal for the Panthers in the second half, allowing Gilliatt to make some substitutions in an effort to save on the starters' legs for the following day.

"The starting 11 were able to give us a good lead, and at the half we were 2-nil," Gilliatt said. "We wanted to get one more point, just to give us some breathing room, allow us to make more substitutions. The guys did that, which is good."

Cameron Wentz had another strong game at center mid, just his third game in that position.

"[Wentz] doesn't have a lot of experience there, but it's been a natural fit," Gilliatt said. "I think he prefers to play in a more offensive role, but he has a really good team attitude. He's willing to go where we need him to go."

Powell will square off with the Tigers again on Thursday, and Gilliatt said the team will benefit from having Sam Bauer back on the pitch; the sophomore missed the weekend due to an injury sustained in the Worland game April 30.

"It will be good to have Sam [Bauer] back; he's been a big part of our success," Gilliatt said. "We'll get him cleared so he's good to go. We don't want him back too much too soon."

PHS senior Rob Sessions winds up for a shot against Lander in a 3-1 Friday win over the Tigers. Sessions had a productive weekend for the Panthers, recording a goal and an assist against Lander, and scoring twice against Pinedale. Photo courtesy Josh Westerhold

PANTHERS 3, PINEDALE 2 OT

Against Pinedale Saturday, the Wranglers took an early 1-0 lead before Powell was able to get its bearings. Sessions brought the game back to even shortly after, and the game was deadlocked at 1-1 at the break.

The game was back and forth in the second half, with Pinedale scoring on a penalty kick to re-take the lead 2-1.

Hawkin Sweeney answered for the Panthers with under 10 minutes left in regulation, tying the game at 2-2 and sending the contest into overtime.

With Sessions' second goal of the game in the first overtime period — and a great save by Panther keeper Ashton Brewer in the second — Powell completed the comeback with a 2-1 win.

"I think Pinedale is much improved," Gilliatt said. "They play a hard, physical game. They beat Cody the day before, 3-1, so they came into our game pretty confident."

Panther junior Ernie Acevedo had a solid game in the midfield, according to Gilliatt, who called him "the defensive standout of the game."

"Ernie [Acevedo] didn't get any goals, but he was just so huge at possession and finding the feet of his teammates," Gilliatt said. "He was just clogging things up for Pinedale, just constantly breaking up counterattacks and breaking up passes. He was just very big defensively that game."

Gilliatt also had praise for the team as a whole, battling back twice to win the game in overtime.

"I think it was an important lesson to learn, to go down 1-0 to a team that is out-working you and to have the grit and the determination to raise the bar and fight back," Gilliatt said. "To get out of that hole not once but twice was a great lesson for all these young players, that you can dig yourselves out of a game that you're losing and get the win, even if it's ugly."

PUBLIC NOTICES

"BECAUSE THE PEOPLE MUST KNOW"

Gas decrease

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Wyoming Public Service Commission (Commission) approved the Application of Montana-Dakota Utilities Co. (MDU or the Company) to pass on a wholesale natural gas cost decrease for the month of March through its Commodity Balancing Account (CBA). The pass on Application results in a wholesale gas cost decrease of $0.160 per dekatherm (Dth) to its Firm Residential, Firm General Service, Small Interruptible and Large Interruptible customers, and a cumulative decrease of $0.166 per Dth to its Optional Seasonal customers, through its CBA, effective on and after March 1, 2019. The proposed pass-on changes are attributable to a decrease in the overall commodity price. The Commission's approval is subject to notice, protest, intervention, refund, change, further investigation, opportunity for hearing and further order of the Commission.

The average MDU residential customer using 10.1 Dth in March 2019 will see a bill decrease of approximately $1.62 per Dth or 2.8%, before taxes. Actual bills will vary with usage.

The proposed pass-on results in a projected dollar-for-dollar decrease of approximately $46,100 in the Company's March 2019 revenues. The decrease does not change the Company's authorized rate of return.

Commission Rule Chapter 3, Section 26 allows a utility to pass on to its customers known or projected commodity cost increases or decreases on a dollar-for-dollar basis, subject to public notice, opportunity for hearing and refund.

MDU's Application is on file at the Commission's offices, located at 2515 Warren Avenue, Suite 300, Cheyenne, Wyoming. The Application is available for inspection by any interested person during regular business hours or online at: <http://psc.state.wy.us/>.

Anyone desiring to file a statement, intervention petition, protest or request for a public hearing in this matter must file in writing with the Commission on or before May 24, 2019. A proposed intervention or request for hearing must set forth the grounds under which they are made and the position and interest of the petitioner in this proceeding. Please mention Docket No. 30013-347-GP-19 (Record No. 15204) in your communications.

If you wish to intervene in this matter or request a public hearing that you will attend, or want to make a statement, a protest or a public comment, and you require reasonable accommodation for a disability, please contact the Commission at (307) 777-7427, or write to the Commission at 2515 Warren Avenue, Suite 300, Cheyenne, Wyoming 82002, to make arrangements. Communications-impaired persons may also contact the Commission by accessing Wyoming Relay at 711.

PHS track: Standout high jumper Colby Warner will miss remainder of track season due to injury

The top eight in each event will qualify for state; the top four relay teams will also qualify.

"We'll work on technique a bit, a little more conditioning, though not a lot," he said. "Right now, Pinedale girls look really good, and they'll have the home field advantage. Mountain View boys have looked really good this year, too, so it's going to be really good competition. Lander's got a lot of good kids, as well. Nobody is going to walk away with anything if everybody does what they should."

LADY PANTHERS

Elsie Spomer notched a first-place finish in the triple jump Friday, with a distance of 31 feet, 6 inches, as she and Shoopman in the 100 meter hurdles were the two winners on the girls side.

Freshman Jenna Hillman had another solid performance, finishing runner-up in the 100, 200 and 400 meter dashes.

"Jenna Hillman had a good day running all the sprint events and a relay," Smith said. "We're still battling back a little bit from that week of Spring Break; some of the kids came back in a lot better shape than others. But Jenna's doing a good job."

Madelyn Horton, Hailee Paul and Hailee Hyde came in two, three and four in the 3200, 1600 and 800 meter runs, respectively.

"Overall, our distance kids were really competitive," Smith said. "They continue to knock big chunks off their time, and are really running hard."

Sidney O'Brien was the top Lady Panther in the 300 meter hurdles, finishing third with a time of 56.54.

In the field events, Kaitlyn Decker finished third in the long jump with a leap of 15 feet, 1.5 inches; it was a personal best for the junior, who beat her previous mark by over a foot.

"That was really nice to see Kaitlyn [Decker] have a performance like that," Smith said.

Gabri Lundberg cleared 4 feet, 10 inches in the high jump to take fourth, while Emma Karhu was third in the pole vault with a height of 9 feet.

PANTHERS

On the boys' side, Brody Karhu finished first in the 200 meter dash and the pole vault, while Jay Cox was tops in the 400 meter dash. Tyler Pfeifer won the 800 meter run, while Dylan Preator, hobbled for most of last week with a sprained ankle, managed to win the 110 meter and 300 meter hurdles. Teammate Kadden Abraham finished runner up behind Preator in both events.

"Dylan Preator and Kadden Abraham did a really nice job pushing each other in the 300 hurdles," Smith said. "It was windy, so the time wasn't great, but they ran well against each other. That was a fun race to watch."

In the distance events, Alan Merritt was second in the 1600 meter run, with Yates third; Yates' second-place finish in the 3200 meter run marked the second time in two meets a Panther prequalified in that event — a feat that's harder than it sounds.

"Yates qualifying in the 2-mile, that's a hard thing to do," Smith said.

"Now we've got two kids that have done that, and that's pretty impressive with Alan [Merritt] having done it last week — and Alan ran the 800 and the mile really well."

In the throwing events, Ryan Good placed second in the shot put and discus, with throws of 45 feet, 7.75 inches, and 137 feet, 1 inch, respectively.

Conspicuously absent for the Panthers this week was high jumper Colby Warner, who will miss the remainder of the season due to injury. The senior was one of the top jumpers in 3A this season, and Smith said his absence will be missed.

"It's a big loss for us, and as a senior, you hate to see that happen," Smith said. "He's worked so hard, and he's such a good kid. You really feel for him."

NWC Forensics team wins big at national tournament

BY KEVIN KILLOUGH
Tribune News Editor

A member of the Northwest College Forensics team picked up the gold at the Phi Rho Pi National Tournament in Reno, Nevada, last month. Jared Lange was awarded the top prize in the International Public Debate Association competition, as well as a bronze award in extemporaneous speaking. With partner Dominic Damiano, Lange also took home a silver in the impromptu competition.

Finally, he placed fourth against all other students at the tournament in Bovero-Tabor individual sweepstakes.

Trysa Flood and Abigaile Grubb won bronze in parliamentary debate. The pair also won the Bossard-Twohy award, which is voted on by parliamentary debaters at the tournament and given to the team they feel best exemplifies what parliamentary debate should embody.

The last time a team from NWC won the Bossard-Twohy award was 2006, and this was the first year an all-female team took it home.

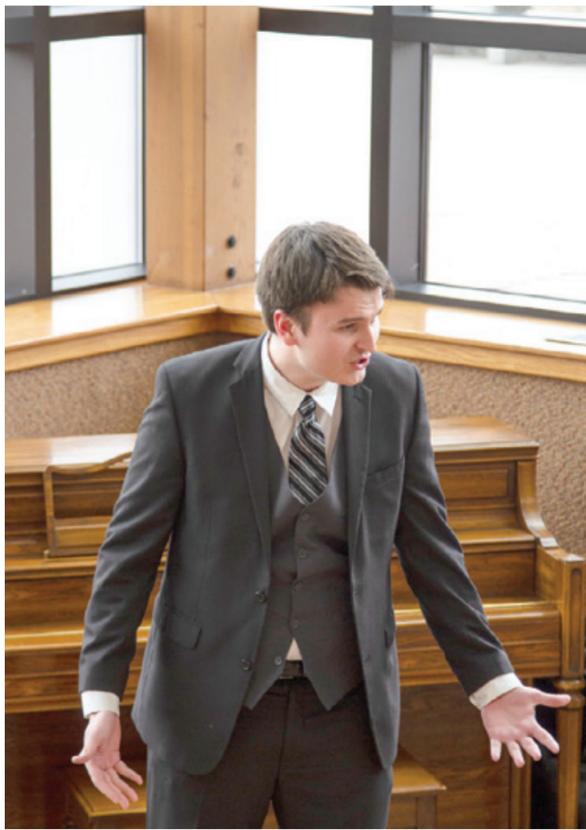

Grubb also picked up a bronze in informative speaking, and Flood picked up a bronze in duet with partner Brendan Kachnowski, who also scored a bronze in prose.

The team's adviser, Jeannie Hunt, said the competition is demanding on the students, who are highly driven to succeed.

"Speech and debate is a long season," Hunt said. Members of the team "have to travel an immense amount to be nationally competitive, and these students still managed to maintain a combined 3.818 GPA last semester."

Hunt said none of the team members are communications majors, and they're selective with who they recruit for the team. The team has placed in the Phi Rho Pi Nationals every year.

"These students are amazing," said Stefani Hicswa, NWC president. "Their talent is accentuated by their performance in the classroom as well. We are very proud of their accomplishments."
