

HOTEL PROJECT STILL SEEKING FINANCING

BY KEVIN KILLOUGH
Tribune News Editor

At its regular meeting Monday, the Powell City Council approved a budget amendment, received an update on the Clocktower Inn project and approved a new agreement with the City of Billings landfill.

Christine Bekes, executive director of the Powell Economic Partnership, said the Clocktower Inn remains at a standstill while hotelier Steve Wahrlich secures funding for the project.

While the hotel and conference center has yet to break ground, Bekes said things are moving forward.

“There are things happening behind the scenes, but it’s hard to see things happening without the dirt moving,” she told the council.

The project is a public-private partnership between the City of Powell and Wahrlich, who will own and operate the roughly 75-room hotel. The conference center, meanwhile, received $2.62 million in state funding, and the city will own it. If the project comes to fruition, Wahrlich will lease the conference center from the city on a 20-year lease, with an option to buy after 10 years.

Bekes said at Monday’s meeting that Wahrlich is in talks with a bank for the final piece of financing on the hotel side of the project, and she said the bank is very interested. There are still details to hammer out before a deal is finalized, but “it’s looking very positive,” she said.

Wahrlich decided to go with a construction manager at risk to oversee the construction of the hotel, and Bekes said he interviewed three contractors, two of which were local. He selected one of the local candidates, who will be announced at a later date.

Mayor John Wetzel asked if there was any certainty as to when the project will break ground.

“Is there a date we can circle on our calendar?” he asked.

Bekes said a date is still uncertain. She had previously indicated that construction would likely start in July.

The council also approved an agreement with the City of Billings for an increase in out-of-state landfill fees.

The City of Powell, which hauls its solid waste to the Billings landfill, had been paying $27.40 per ton. However, the Billings City Council recently raised that fee to $31.40 per ton, with the increase going into effect July 1.

For the time being, there will be no increase on Powell residents’ bills.

“At this immediate time there won’t be an increase passed down to the Powell residents, but we constantly monitor rates,” said City Administrator Zack Thorington.

Any rate increases in the future would need to be presented to the City Council.

The council also approved an amendment to the 2018-2019 budget at Monday’s meeting, adding $49,500 from unappropriated funds to cover increased expenses from former city administrator Zane Logan’s retirement payout.

The city also needed to cover a month’s salary for a new IT manager, a position that was vacated when Thorington was promoted to administrator.

‘There are things happening behind the scenes, but it’s hard to see things happening without the dirt moving.’

CONFLICT IN PARTY

County GOP leaders resign

BY CJ BAKER
Tribune Editor

Tensions within the Park County Republican Party boiled over Monday night, as three of the party’s top leaders resigned over “irreconcilable differences” with Chairman Martin Kimmel.

Meanwhile, an effort backed by the resigning leaders to remove the party’s secretary from his post failed by a narrow margin.

Park County Republicans picked their leaders only a few months ago, and they were supposed to serve for two years on the GOP’s executive committee. Now, Republicans will need to hold a new election to choose replacements.

In their brief letter of resignation — submitted in the middle of Monday’s meeting — party Vice Chairman Joyce Boyer, State Committeewoman Denise Shirley and Treasurer Jennifer Lohrenz said the chairman position is “intended to be a role of leadership, not dictatorship.”

While they didn’t elaborate in their letter, one of the issues of contention was Kimmel’s unilateral decision to appoint Vince Vanata — a leader of the Big Horn Basin Tea Party — as the executive committee’s secretary.

Shirley also called it a “disgrace” that Kimmel didn’t invite state Rep. Sandy Newsome, R-Cody, to the party’s meeting in March, where GOP Reps. David Northrup and Dan Laursen of Powell addressed the body; Kimmel has been critical of Newsome’s voting record.

GRIZZLIES ARE RANGING FURTHER AFIELD AND CONFLICTS ARE RISING, BUT SIDES DISAGREE ON WHY

BY MARK DAVIS
Tribune Staff Writer

It’s undisputed that the number of conflicts between grizzly bears and people are on the rise in northwest Wyoming, with bears roaming further and further from their core habitat in and around Yellowstone National Park. But why the bears are spreading out of the so-called “demographic monitoring area,” or DMA, is a matter of debate.

The Wyoming Game and Fish

Department says the increased conflicts are a sign that the DMA is full and that bears are being pushed out into less desirable areas — such as the sow and two cubs that reached Byron last year.

“The DMA was identified as a large enough tract of contiguous habitat to maintain [Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem] grizzly bears in perpetuity,” Brian Nesvik, director of the Wyoming Game and Fish Department, told a congressional committee discussing proposed legislation called the Tribal Heritage and Grizzly Bear Protection Act earlier this month. “However, because the core of the population has nearly achieved density dependence, grizzly bear distribution has extended far beyond suitable habitats.”

Some scientists and bear advocates, however, don’t see it that way.

Barrie K. Gilbert, a conservation ecologist and emeritus faculty at Utah State University, told a Big Horn Basin spring ending on a wet note

BY MARK DAVIS
Tribune Staff Writer

If you’re tired of the wet, gloomy nature of spring, you probably won’t like the forecast for the official start of summer. Rain is once again forecasted for every day through the middle of next week.

But look for the silver lining in those clouds: Lawns in Powell have rarely looked this good and the area wildflowers are beginning to bloom in brilliant colors.

May was exceptionally wet in Powell. The city received 2.79 inches of rain — 1.39 inches above normal. That followed a dry April when Powell only registered 0.1 of an inch of precipitation, according to the National Weather Service in Riverton.

Meteorologist Trevor LaVoie said the Powell area’s precipitation for 2019 is 170 percent above normal. But Powell is far from the wettest spot in Vehicles traveling south on Bent Street find the roads flooded near the tracks after a heavy downpour in downtown Powell on Friday. The Powell area weather station, located north of town and on the edge of Friday’s gully-washer, recorded only 0.7 of an inch of precipitation for the entire weekend.

Juror faces jail

LARAMIE (WNE) — Albany County District Court Judge Tori Kricken ruled that a juror in a Laramie civil case will be jailed indefinitely, starting June 28, unless she completes community service and writes an essay.

Lindsey Salisbury was held in contempt of court after refusing to serve on a jury. To avoid jail time, Salisbury must perform 20 hours of community service and complete a "10-page single-spaced typed paper regarding the importance of the American judicial system, the jury's role in the same, and the importance of an individual's civic responsibility of service."

On June 3, Salisbury was selected as a juror for a two-week trial regarding a business dispute between Laramie energy company WellDog and former business partners in Australia. After voir dire, Salisbury "expressed some concern with the length of trial vis-a-vis her employment as a private mental health counselor," Kricken wrote in her contempt order. Salisbury acknowledged there were other counselors who could help her clients, but still refused to take the juror's oath, the order says.

Grizzlies: Game and Fish will conduct capture operations in northwest Wyoming

House committee that the issue isn't that the grizzly population is growing. Instead, he said grizzlies are expanding their territory due to a lack of food inside the suitable habitat set aside in the DMA.

"Just because grizzlies are expanding their range further from the protected park does not indicate that there is a surplus available for legal killing," Gilbert said. "Rather, an interpretation of lowered density because of an impoverished food base is more likely."

The actual number of grizzly bears in northwest Wyoming is a question that's front and center of the debate over whether the species is recovered and should be removed from federal protections under the Endangered Species Act.

The official number cited by most is an estimate generated by a counting system known as the Chao 2 method.

Only grizzlies inside the DMA are counted in the estimates. As derived from the Chao 2 equation, there are more than 700 grizzlies inside that core habitat.

The current estimates rise and fall depending on many factors. Infanticide — adult grizzlies killing cubs — is a large contributor; conflicts with people and livestock are another.

Bears outside the DMA aren't counted as adding to the population, even though they exist. Bear deaths outside the DMA also aren't included in the Chao 2 estimate, although they are noted in the U.S. Geological Survey's running mortality count.

"That was part of the reason for developing the DMA," said Dan Thompson, large carnivore program supervisor for the Game and Fish. "Mortality was being viewed as inflated due to higher conflict potential and mortality risk in human-dominated landscapes outside of recovery areas."

The Chao 2 estimate is purposely conservative, which previously suited scientific efforts in recovery.

But now there is a push to adopt new "best science" methods to estimate populations. More accurate population estimates should go a long way making sense of the debate and may influence the Interagency Grizzly Bear Committee into adopting new methods for future population estimates.

However many grizzlies there are in northwest Wyoming, the bears have spread well outside the boundaries of the designated habitat in DMA, which has resulted in more conflicts with humans and agricultural operations.

From 1990-1999, Wyoming saw an average of 79 conflicts a year. From 2000-2009, that number jumped to 150 verified conflicts per year, and from 2010-2018 Wyoming responded to an average of more than 220 verified grizzly bear conflicts, Nesvik said.

Further, since 2010, there have been seven human deaths in the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem caused by grizzly bear attacks. From the mid-1980s to 2010, there were none.

"These unfortunate events are the result of more bears in new places," Nesvik said.

Wyoming does the work to resolve conflict resolutions, pays the price for management, but all decisions are made on the federal level while the species is protected under the Endangered Species Act.

In 2018, the Game and Fish — in cooperation and with oversight from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service — "lethally removed" 32 grizzly bears in conflict situations. Five grizzlies have already been euthanized this year, according to the U.S. Geological Survey: one inside the DMA and four outside the boundary. Another three grizzlies were killed on the road in automotive accidents.

As part of ongoing efforts to monitor the population of grizzly bears inside the ecosystem, the Game and Fish is conducting capture operations in northwest Wyoming which began this spring and will continue through early fall.

"Information obtained through these efforts is used to assess the status and health of grizzly bears in the ecosystem and provides insight into population dynamics critical to demonstrate the continued recovery of the Greater Yellowstone population," the department said in a release.

It will be up to the Interagency Grizzly Bear Committee to decide whether to abandon Chao 2 in favor of a different method.

The committee was formed in 1983 to help ensure recovery of viable grizzly bear populations and their habitat in the lower 48 states through inter-agency coordination of policy, planning, management and research. It consists of representatives from the U.S. Forest Service, the National Park Service, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the Bureau of Land Management, the U.S. Geological Survey and representatives of the state wildlife agencies of Idaho, Montana, Washington and Wyoming. Canadian Wildlife Service and Native American tribes possessing grizzly habitat have been involved.

OBITUARIES

Janice Faye Grosch Franklin

(July 24, 1944 - June 17, 2019)

Janice Faye Grosch Franklin passed away on June 17, 2019, in Powell.

She was born on July 24, 1944, in Worland, to Alexander Grosch and Elsie Buxmann.

Janice married Elmer Butz in January 1962, and they had five children together. In 1981, she married Clif Franklin, who she met at a softball game in Powell in 1979.

She was a mother, wife and homemaker. She enjoyed crafts, sewing, painting, golfing, bowling and softball.

She was preceded in death by her parents Alexander and Elsie, brother Robert "Bobby" John Grosch, brother Edward "Eddie" Henry Grosch, brother Donald David Grosch, sister Joyce Marie Stratton, and father-in-law Darwin Franklin.

She is survived by her husband Clif Franklin; mother-in-law Naida Franklin of Powell; sons Robert Lee Butz (Joy) of Cheyenne; Wayne Leroy Butz (Shannon) of Worland; and B.J. Franklin of Sheridan; daughters Faye Lynne Dale (Delbert) of Riverton; Connie Sue Haun (Tom) of Worland; Rachel Rae Schulenberg (Ron) of Casper; and Tina Marie Dunne (Mike) of Seabeck, Washington; sisters Nancy Carol Martin (Melvin) of Windsor, Colorado; Linda June Sutton (Mike Newman) of Los Gatos, California; Norma Carpenter of Littleton, Colorado; 23 grandchildren and 20 great-grandchildren. She is also survived by numerous nieces and nephews.

Services will be held on Saturday, June 22, at 10 a.m., at Faith Community Church, 1267 Road 18, in Powell. A graveside memorial will follow in Worland at 1:30 p.m.

Oleva 'Eve' Wharton

(May 30, 1924 - June 13, 2019)

Oleva "Eve" Hays Wharton was born May 30, 1924, in Yarrow, Missouri, a small country town. She passed away peacefully in her Powell home, having just celebrated her 95th birthday a few weeks before.

Eve was the only child born to Reba (Wood) and Robert Hays. She graduated from Kirksville High School in Missouri in 1941. Upon graduation, she worked in the Kirksville shoe factory making combat boots for soldiers during World War II.

She married Robert (Bob) Wharton on Feb. 21, 1946. In 1960, Bob and Eve moved from Centerville, Iowa, to Powell, where Bob taught business at Northwest Community College. Eve earned her teaching degree from the University of Wyoming and taught second grade at Southside Elementary School for 20 years. She followed the lives of her former students for years.

Eve will be missed for her homemaking skills. She made the best homemade noodles and pork tenderloin. She enjoyed making cookies and candy for Christmas for her children and grandchildren to enjoy. She made beautiful hand-stitched quilts. She was a master at crochet and embroidery. She remembered her children's and grandchildren's birthdays with a card with some spending money enclosed.

Eve was a member of the Presbyterian congregation in Powell.

She is survived by her two sons David Wharton (Heather) of Las Vegas, Nevada; and Robert Paul Wharton (Marilyn) of Lawrence, Kansas; three grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband Robert, her parents and her son George Leon Wharton.

Services for Eve will be held Monday, June 24, 2019, at 2 p.m. at Thompson Funeral Home, 111 W. Third St., in Powell. Burial will follow at Crown Hill Cemetery.

Nancy Rochelle Stienbarger

(Aug. 5, 1947 - June 15, 2019)

Nancy Rochelle Stienbarger passed away on June 15, 2019, at the Advanced Care Hospital of Montana in Billings.

She was born on Aug. 5, 1947, in Pierre, South Dakota, to Peter B. Martin and Alberta A. Acker.

She earned her associates degree from Northwest Community College and worked as a bookkeeper.

Nancy loved to crochet, read, watch birds, and garden. She enjoyed flowers, music, family, friends, and her Chihuahuas and cats.

She was preceded in death by her father, mother, brothers Robert D. Martin and Dick Weig, and sister Janet Burt.

She is survived by her daughter Brenda J. Feller (Stienbarger), married to John L. Feller, of Powell; and Laura N. Stienbarger, also of Powell; brother Danny Sheets of Sioux Falls, South Dakota; sister Kathleen Bapp, married to Gene Bapp, of Metcalf, Illinois; two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held on Wednesday, June 26, 2019, at 10 a.m., at Hope Lutheran Church, 588 Ave. H, in Powell, which will be officiated by Rev. Donna Putney. Burial will follow at Crown Hill Cemetery.

Earl Meeker, (Oct. 18, 1923 - June 18, 2019)

Earl Meeker, 95, of Powell passed away on Tuesday, June 18, 2019. Funeral arrangements are pending and a full obituary will follow.

Water levels rising at Bighorn Canyon

Water levels are high at Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area and park officials are urging visitors to be aware of the conditions.

"Bighorn Lake is in flood stage and will affect the boat-in-only camping, boating, and some of the other facilities," said Christy Fleming, the park's chief of interpretation.

As of Wednesday, the water level at Bighorn Lake stood at 3,642.5 feet, which is 2 1/2 feet into the flood pool. The level is expected to continue rising over the next two weeks.

Due to the high water, sizable amounts of driftwood and other debris are floating on the lake. Several driftwood rafts containing large trees have formed, which can cause serious damage to boat props and lower units, park officials say.

The high water is also affecting the Black Canyon and Dayboard 9 campgrounds. The campgrounds are not closed, but the sites are starting to go underwater. When the lake reaches 3,646 feet, all sites at Black Canyon will be underwater. The high water has also temporarily eliminated the accessibility parking on the ramp at Barry's Landing. The park recommends large trucks and boat trailers back down the ramp to avoid the challenge of turning vehicles around at the end of the launch area.

Parts of the Barry's Island Trail to Medicine Creek will go underwater at lake level 3,646 feet, and the swim beach areas at Ok-A-Beh and Horseshoe Bend marinas have significantly diminished in size due to the high water.

Boaters may also be aware of new docks stacked at both Barry's Landing and Horseshoe Bend. Due to contracting issues and safety concerns, the park is waiting to complete the installation until the issues are resolved.

For current lake conditions or help planning a visit, visitors may call the Cal S. Taggart Bighorn Canyon Visitor Center at 307-548-5406.

The Black Canyon area is pictured earlier this month, before Bighorn Lake hit flood pool levels. The Black Canyon Campground may go under water.

Rain: Summer officially begins on Friday

Basin this spring. Worland registered 5 inches of rain in May, more than 3 inches above normal. June data is still being collected by the Weather Service.

Rainfall amounts for Powell are collected every 24 hours by University of Wyoming

Research and Extension office associate, Samantha Fulton.

"We haven't really got a break from May to June," she said. "It looks like we're going to be a little soggy for a while."

Fulton has recorded 1.14 inches of rain so far this month at the station north of Powell, but it was on the edge of the storm that downtown Powell received on Friday.

"Most of town was hit harder than we were," she said.

According to Fulton's records, Powell received 1.97 inches of rain last June. In 2017 precipitation was closer to normal in June with 0.92 inches.

Whether or not the weather reflects it, summer officially begins on Friday.

IN OUR OPINION

Pence visit to Yellowstone needs to be more than photo op

Summer is in full swing, and visitors from all over the world are descending on Yellowstone National Park in droves to enjoy the sights and sounds of what our glorious treasure has to offer.

Adding to this list of wide-eyed wanderers, the park featured a very special group of visitors last week, as Vice President Mike Pence, recently-confirmed Interior Secretary David Bernhardt and Pence's wife Karen made an appearance at one of Yellowstone's most famous hot spots.

Pence was at Old Faithful Thursday to double down on the current administration's "commitment to conservation," specifically addressing the $12 billion national maintenance backlog. It was also an opportunity for the VP to espouse the proposed Department of Interior budget, which has earmarked $3 billion for work on national parks.

And though it was a disruption for visitors like the family of five from Wichita, who arrived at Old Faithful to find the iconic landmark had been commandeered by the Secret Service for most of the day, the VP's visit was an important one. Photo ops and platitudes notwithstanding, Pence's visit was an indication that the administration is indeed aware of the dire situation facing our national parks, and that steps, however small at the moment, are being taken to address it. It was also an opportunity to introduce Bernhardt to this part of Wyoming, as the man who will be tasked with following through on Pence's assurances.

Bernhardt was an interesting choice to succeed the train wreck that was Ryan Zinke at the Interior Department, who seemed more interested in the exploitation of our public lands than preservation. A former oil and gas lobbyist from Colorado, Bernhardt has been under investigation since joining the Interior Department in 2017 as deputy secretary, most notably for continuing to lobby for oil and gas interests well after he officially claimed he'd stopped.

But last week in front of a group of Yellowstone Park employees, Bernhardt warmed up the crowd by assuring them that the administration's proposed legislation to fix infrastructure at national parks is a call to action that will soon be answered.

We hope he's sincere. Visitation at our national parks continues to grow, while the number of employees tasked with maintaining them remains stagnant. Some of our most historic and beloved areas, including the six National Park Service properties in the state, are in need of immediate attention.

Following a speech where he compared President Trump to former president Teddy Roosevelt in terms of their commitment to conservation, Pence and Bernhardt donned work gloves and safety glasses to assist park employees with the construction of a new boardwalk adjacent to Old Faithful. And although the VP may have taken up a nail gun mostly as a benefit for the gathered media members, the image of two of our nation's leaders putting in a little grunt work left an impression.

For the sake of our national parks, let's hope it's the right one.

Camp offers lessons on horses, life

As I approached the covered porch, I saw lines of dusty cowboy boots. Inside was a maze of denim-clad riders, sporting big silver belts and sweat-stained hats.

They belonged to 12 young people, aged 12 or older, who were taking part in a five-day horse camp, from June 3-7, at Ron and Janis Adams' Crazy Cayuse Ranch on Lane 11 near Powell. Camp Wannabe provides the opportunity to learn the basic principles of horsemanship.

A large arena on the ranch allows the young riders to try their skill in an enclosed area before launching out on a designated trail along the Shoshone River. Since some of the participants have never ridden before, preventative measures are taken to keep them safe and sound during the week.

Assistant Camp Leader Tyler Davison stressed safety as one of the pillars of the camp. "Although the parents must sign a risk/liability release form before their sons and daughters are allowed to participate, safety, safety, safety is drilled into all of us every day," he said.

The activities begin at 8:30 each morning with the saddling of the horses. This is followed by warm up exercises in the arena. One morning, Katie King, who has participated in the camp for at least four years, demonstrated the principle of trust by riding her blindfolded horse around the arena with no bridle. Ron explained that she had built a bond of trust with the horse, which enabled her to accomplish the amazing feat.

About 10:30 there is a break for refreshments and a chance to cool off in a large basement room in the ranch house. On Friday, a devotion on taking the first step was read by Peyton Seller, one of four junior leaders. This was followed by a prayer over the food and then lots of loud chatter as the kids talked to each other over brunch. While observing from the sidelines, I took the opportunity to ask a few questions.

This was Scotty Riedinger's second time at the camp and he said, "It is truly great!"

His horse, Risky was more of a challenge than some. Camp Leader Ron Adams confirmed that the 14-year-old pinto mare was spunky to say the least, but he had felt Scotty was well able to handle her.

Jay Swaney said he had learned a lot in a short amount of time. By Friday he was able to ride bareback for the first time because he had learned to relax and trust his horse.

Hannah Sears was touched by a teaching from the Bible on discipline that opened her eyes to the fact that she had to be disciplined herself before she could successfully train a horse.

Kaydence Hoffert said the social aspect of the camp was what she liked most. She lives high up on the Morrison Jeep Trail and doesn't have much opportunity to be with other young people.

Hailey Mann agreed, saying that getting to know the kids is what she enjoys too.

Junior Leader Madi Harvey added that there was a warm atmosphere at Camp Wannabe and that there was never a dull moment there. This was her second time attending also.

When Ava Benedict's horse stopped suddenly to get a bite of grass, she slid off over his head. She laughed as she described the incident, thankful that she had not experienced any injury. Her friends said that after she landed she did a somersault, stood up and did a cartwheel and then shouted for glee at the top of her lungs.

Incidents like this are why the trainees are taught that one of the first steps in becoming a good horseman is developing an awareness of their horse's movements.

Once their horse's feet start moving, they have to be alert at all times, the lesson said. "The development of their horsemanship skills are dependent upon them being able to 'feel the feet' of their mount."

According to a Bible lesson presented after lunch one afternoon, the process is similar to the way our relationship with God is developed. It said we must learn to be alert and attentive to God's leading, like a horse learns to trust a rider. Both have to start moving before they know where they are going.

Young Eli Swaney said learning to "listen" to his horse "Kisses" was the most valuable thing he had learned at the camp. He explained that he had gotten to the place he could read his horse's actions as loudly as any words he could have heard.

Camp Cook Janis Adams remarked that without the help of volunteers Christi Gream, Liz Seller and Cathy Ringler, she and Ron could never have succeeded in hosting the camp. Ron Vining, leader of Polestar, was also a valuable helper as were junior leaders Harvey and Seller.

Now that the boots are gone and the dust has settled, Ron and Janis are looking forward to next year's adventures at Wannabe Horse Camp. For further information, you can contact them at 307-754-4520.

What to do when you find injured or 'abandoned' wildlife

HEATHER O'BRIEN
Guest columnist

It's natural to want to help wildlife when we believe them to be hurt or left behind. If you see an animal that appears to be injured, do not approach or try to capture the animal as it can be dangerous for both you and the animal.

The best first step is to call the Wyoming Game and Fish Department at 1-877-WGFD-TIP. A dispatcher is available 24 hours a day and will contact a biologist or game warden in your area. You will be asked to describe the situation in detail and may be contacted by the assigned officer to provide further information.

Often when young wildlife appear to be abandoned, it is actually not the case. Adult birds, cottontails, deer, pronghorn and other species often hide their young from predators by leaving them alone for much of the day. In the spring and summer it is common for young wildlife to be found in unexpected places, such as backyards, along roadsides and in alleyways. In virtually all cases there is nothing wrong; these youngsters are just learning how to walk, run or fly, but have not yet mastered these skills.

Some species like great horned owls are common in urban areas. As their young grow too big for the nest they frequently end up on the ground and in other conspicuous places. The adults are usually not far away and will bring food to their young as they grow and improve their flying skills. Young animals may also seem tame, as they are naive and have not yet learned how to avoid danger.

As with injured wildlife, it is best not to pick up young animals. Young wildlife should rarely, if ever, be taken into captivity. It is in fact illegal to possess most wildlife species without proper permitting. If you are concerned about a young animal, again, you can call the Game and Fish at 1-877-WGFD-TIP, or your local Game and Fish Office, game warden or biologist. The closest available biologist or game warden will be dispatched to assist.

Tom Brokaw to receive award

LADONNA ZALL COMPASSIONATE WITNESS AWARD TO BE PRESENTED AT ANNUAL PILGRIMAGE

Legendary newscaster and author Tom Brokaw will receive the third LaDonna Zall Compassionate Witness Award during the Heart Mountain Wyoming Foundation's annual Pilgrimage. The event will be held July 27, at the location of the World War II Japanese American confinement site.

"We have been honored with Tom [Brokaw]'s support since the day we opened the doors to our interpretive center, and we want to show our appreciation," said Heart Mountain Wyoming Foundation Chair Shirley Ann Higuchi.

Since speaking at the 2011 grand opening of the Heart Mountain Interpretive Center, Brokaw has continued to report on the injustice of the Japanese American incarceration, including an NBC News report marking the 75th anniversary of Japanese internment in 2017.

"I am greatly honored to be a part of the testimonial to the heroic Japanese American citizens who endured the cruel incarceration during WWII," Brokaw said. "What happened at Heart Mountain should be taught to every succeeding generation of American schoolchildren."

Mountain Wyoming Foundation has worked to preserve the site where almost 14,000 Japanese Americans were imprisoned during World War II.

LaDonna Zall is a Powell resident who witnessed the final train of prisoners leaving Heart Mountain in 1945. She was instrumental in building the interpretive center and curating its artifact collection.

GRAND OLD FLAG

The Sons of the American Revolution recently honored Park County Weed and Pest for its 'outstanding' presentation of the American flag, with members Walt Hartung and Bob Stevens presenting Weed and Pest Director Josh Shorb with a certificate on Flag Day, June 14. The local group presents the award to an individual or business each year. The Weed and Pest flagpole is tall enough to display three flags and is lit at night. "You drive on that highway [U.S. 14-A], you can't miss it," Hartung said. Shorb said that when plans for the building were drawn up about a decade ago, the weed and pest board included the pole — "and it was non-negotiable." He added that, "We're proud of it!" Tri-State seeking to add more renewable energy projects

Tri-State Generation and Transmission Association — which supplies electricity to Garland Light & Power — has issued its sixth request for proposals (RFP) for renewable energy resources.

"Steady investment in renewables from Tri-State and our members means one of every three electrons consumed in our association comes from emissions-free renewable resources," said Duane Highley, chief executive officer of Tri-State. "This RFP advances our drive to be a 21st century power supplier for our members that is increasingly flexible and clean."

As renewable energy prices have decreased, Tri-State said it's accelerated the pace of its renewable additions. The association's weighted average cost of all wind and solar power purchase agreements is now less than half of what it was in 2009.

"Tri-State has a demonstrated record of successfully adding cost-effective and high-performing renewable resources," said Brad Nebergall, senior vice president, energy management.

Tri-State's addition of renewable resources, as well as the availability of low-cost market power, has reduced the association's use of coal. Nebergall noted that the coop closed one coal-fired plant and plans to retire two others.

The coop and its members currently have enough renewable resources to power the equivalent needs of more than 570,000 rural homes.

With the new RFP, Tri-State said it's seeking low-cost solar and wind projects that will receive federal tax benefits. They're seeking proposals of 10 to 200 megawatts with terms of 15 to 25 years, with a preference for projects within the service territories of its member systems. Tri-State expects to make decisions on any new projects by the end of 2019.

Nominations sought for Farm Service Agency

USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) is accepting nominations for county committee members. Agricultural producers who participate or cooperate in an FSA program may be nominated and people may nominate themselves or others.

"I encourage America's farmers, ranchers and forest stewards to nominate candidates to lead, serve and represent their community on their county committee," FSA Administrator Richard Fordyce said. "There's an increasing need for diverse representation including underserved producers, which includes beginning, women and minority farmers and ranchers."

Committees make important decisions about how federal farm programs are administered locally, the FSA says. The agency said the committees' input is vital on how FSA carries out disaster programs, as well as conservation, commodity and price support programs, county office employment and other agricultural issues.

Nationwide, more than 7,700 dedicated members of the agricultural community serve on FSA county committees. The committees are made of three to 11 members and typically meet once a month. Members serve three-year terms.

Producers should visit the Powell FSA office to find out how to get involved with Park County's committee. To be considered, a producer must sign an FSA-669A nomination form. The form and other information are available at www.fsa.usda.gov/elections. All nomination forms must be postmarked or received in the local FSA office by Aug. 1.

Election ballots will be mailed to eligible voters beginning Nov. 4.

The project begins at milepost 106, east of Otto, and ends at milepost 112, west of Otto. Otto is about 11 miles west of Basin on Wyo. Highway 30. Prime contractor is Mountain Construction of Lovell. Contract completion date is Oct. 31.

DIGEST

House fire believed to be arson, information sought

Authorities are seeking information about a fire that claimed an abandoned Powell area home last month, saying they suspect the building was intentionally set ablaze.

The Powell Volunteer Fire Department and the sheriff's deputies were dispatched to the Willwood area home — located at 951 Lane 13 — around 11 p.m. on May 17. When firefighters arrived, they found the home engulfed in flames and spent about two hours putting the fire out.

In a Tuesday Facebook post, the Park County Sheriff's Office said the Powell fire department and state Fire Marshal's Office "suspects that the fire was a result of an arson."

"They are seeking the public's assistance in determining who may have been responsible for the fire," said the post.

Anyone with information about the fire is asked to contact the Park County Dispatch Center at 307-754-8700 or via private message on the sheriff's office's Facebook page.

dence had been vacant for some time, but David Northrup, whose family owned the home, said it still had materials they wanted to salvage — in addition to the family home's sentimental value.

"Somebody did it," Northrup had said of the apparent arson last month. "Somebody knows what's going on."

The sheriff's office said all information it receives from tipsters "will remain strictly confidential."

Veterans, families connect with public lands at fishing event

Veterans, their family members, volunteers and the Bureau of Land Management came together this month to fish, paddle and celebrate veterans and public lands. Close to 100 people enjoyed the inaugural Veterans Family Fishing Classic at the Hogan/Luce Recreation Area north of Cody, hosted by the BLM Cody Field Office, FishingCommunity.Org and the local community.

'We look forward to hosting future events and finding additional recreational opportunities to help veterans and their families connect with public lands.'

*Rick Tryder
BLM outdoor recreation planner*

Highlights of the free June 8 event included shore and boat fishing, fishing instruction, barbecue lunch and complimentary fishing supplies and raffle prizes. Participants also enjoyed the recent improvements at Hogan/Luce, which made the site more accessible for people with disabilities. The improvements include accessible picnic tables, fire rings, bear boxes and a brand new canoe/kayak dock.

"I thought the event was a huge success and it was great seeing the vets out there with their families," said R.J. Ludwick, Post Commander from the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) post 2673 in Cody.

"This fantastic day wouldn't have been possible without the support of our partners, sponsors and the community," said Rick Tryder, BLM outdoor recreation planner. "We look forward to hosting future events and finding additional recreational opportunities to help veterans and their families connect with public lands."

The BLM and FishingCommunity.Org hope to make this an annual event. If you are interested in participating, contact Tryder at rtryder@blm.gov or 307-578-5900. For more information about the Fisheries for Veterans Project, visit www.F4V.org.

Council approves alcohol permits for UW

LARAMIE (WNE) — Beer and other malt alcoholic beverages will again be available at War Memorial Stadium and the University of Wyoming Arena-Auditorium for the 2019-2020 seasons, but not all members of the Laramie City Council were excited about the exclusivity of the permits.

Roxie Hensley, owner of Cowboy State Brewing, LLC and Roxie's Catering, LLC, will once again be providing the alcohol at UW events at the stadium and auditorium after being awarded special malt beverage permits by the City Council on Tuesday.

Councilman Charles McKinney asked about the permit's exclusivity, which makes Hensley's companies the only ones that can sell beer anywhere in the stadium except the Wildcatter and Beer Garden areas and anywhere except Mickeys in the auditorium.

Bill Sparks, senior associate athletic director for business operations at UW, explained Hensley's two companies were chosen because of their ability to handle complicated aspects of serving alcohol at such large events.

"We went through [a Request for Proposal] process, asked other vendors in this area and town and so forth to bid on that," with Roxie's awarded the bid, Sparks explained.

The council approved both measures with seven votes in approval and McKinney and Councilman Paul Weaver voting no.

Riverton to offer Arapaho language classes

RIVERTON (WNE) — Two classes on the Northern Arapaho language are coming to Riverton High School.

The Fremont County School District 25 Board of Trustees approved the course offerings in May. Parents and students have been suggesting the idea for years, RHS principal John Griffith said in his request for the courses, but the opportunity never was realized. Griffith said the school now has a staff member to teach the language.

The proposed courses are Arapaho Language I and II.

The first class will acquaint students with the basic sounds that make up the Arapaho language. They also will learn the Arapaho alphabet.

In Arapaho II, students will use the basic sounds of the Arapaho language to form Arapaho words and phrases in order to have conversations or tell short stories. Griffith noted the importance of the lessons to the preservation of Arapaho language and culture.

"[We are] trying to step forward in a very clear manner to honor that maintaining of the native language," FCS 25 superintendent Terry Snyder said. "I'm really excited about this. I think it'll be a great course for the kids and the native tribal members."

Snyder said the district previously ran into difficulties in attempting to offer an Arapaho language course, indicating the "biggest challenge" has been finding the right instructor.

"We think we're going to get it done this time," Snyder said.

Black Hills Energy rate hikes reviewed

CHEYENNE (WNE) — Consumer advocates with the Wyoming Public Service Commission are investigating a Black Hills Energy proposal to consolidate and raise natural gas rates.

The Office of Consumer Advocate, an independent division of the commission, is reviewing a recent Black Hills request to increase rates by an average of 17.3 percent across multiple service areas by 2020.

Earlier this month, Black Hills Energy asked the commission to consolidate the company's four Wyoming gas utilities into one new legal entity, Black Hills Wyoming Gas. The company also submitted a rate review application to consolidate the rates, tariffs and regulations of existing gas territories in Wyoming.

Company executives say the rate changes will streamline service to 129,500 Wyoming customers and help Black Hills recover investments more reliably.

But, as proposed, some residential customers would see steep increases in their natural gas bills. In Casper and Gillette, customers could expect increases of 15-30 percent, and Cheyenne and Cody customers could see increases from 2-15 percent, according to the OCA.

Both residential and small commercial Laramie County consumers would see increases of 2-4 percent.

"We will be reviewing the application and conducting on-site audits to make sure [Black Hills] is only granted rates that are required to fairly compensate the company for the cost of delivering natural gas to its customers," said OCA Administrator Bryce Freeman.

The OCA will investigate to determine if the rate increases are an accurate reflection of recent investment costs, said Christopher Leger, an attorney at the organization.

GOP: Three party members hand in prewritten letter of resignation long-running and tend to fall in two camps: more conservative members, including Kimmet and Vanata, and members who are comparatively less conservative. Toward the end of the more than two-hour meeting in Cody, Kimmet decried the division and said the party should be focusing on the 2020 elections. "This looks like the House of Representatives," Kimmet said. "It's pretty sad. It really is."

Members of the Park County Republican Party's central committee — including (from left) Denise Shirley, Joyce Boyer and Jennifer Lohrenz at the back table — vote during a Monday night meeting at Big Horn Federal Savings Bank in Cody. Shirley, Boyer and Lohrenz resigned their leadership positions within the party earlier in the meeting. Those with their hands raised believed that the decision by party chairman Martin Kimmet (pictured standing at the lectern) to appoint Vince Vanata (seated to the left of Kimmet) as secretary required ratification by the central committee. Tribune photo by CJ Baker

Monday's meeting of 44 members of the local GOP's precinct committeemen and women was contentious from the start. However, it took a downward turn during the tail end of a discussion about the party's upcoming Freedom Celebration in Cody. Some party members — generally those who oppose Kimmet's leadership — had expressed concern about the roughly $1,000 budget and the possibility of the annual event becoming politicized. "There was some talk about selling some Trump 2020 bumper stickers, hats, etc., to help offset the costs," Kimmet told the body, but "we've decided not to do that. There was just too much contention ..."

As he finished his explanation, Lohrenz stood to await her turn to speak, and Kimmet told her to sit down until he finished. "That's the problem with the executive," called out Colin Simpson, referring to Kimmet. As other members chimed in, Kimmet slammed his gavel. "We'll have civility in here and when I recognize you, you may stand," he said. "Are you kidding?" precinct committeewoman Geri Hockhalter called out from the audience. "Grow up," another committeeman said, speaking to Kimmet. As the exchange continued, Lohrenz, Boyer and Shirley handed in their prewritten letter of resignation, abandoned their seats at the front table and participated in the rest of the meeting from the back of the room. Later, Kimmet acknowledged that Robert's Rules of Order say standing up is one way to ask for the floor. "... I was not aware of that and I would like to apologize to Jennifer Lohrenz for the lack of knowledge and for speaking to you the way I did," Kimmet said. "It's not the first time," Lohrenz responded. The rest of the meeting was spent deciding if and how the central committee should vote on Vanata's appointment as party secretary, as the party's bylaws are unclear on the subject. Some precinct committee members argued the chairman has the right to choose a secretary to assist him — and that most previous secretaries had not been subject to any kind of ratification process. "It's only being brought up now because ... there's an ad hominem attack against Vincent Vanata," said Sheila Leach, the previous secretary; Vanata faced previous attempts at removal when he was treasurer and vice chair. Those who wanted ratification of the secretary's position contended that's the process laid out in the bylaws. "I am just puzzled why in a democratic society we're even quibbling about this. Why in the world wouldn't we ratify somebody?" asked Ann Simpson, Colin's mother. Eventually, a voice vote was taken on whether the central committee should vote on Vanata's appointment. (Had the motion passed, the party would have then voted on whether to ratify Vanata.) When the results of the voice vote were unclear, some party members asked to settle the matter with a secret ballot. A lengthy discussion and consultation of Robert's Rules of Order then ensued about whether paper balloting was allowed. "At the risk of sounding silly, we should vote on whether to vote with a ballot," offered Anthony Spiering, a precinct committeeman who helps with parliamentary procedure. Ultimately, however, Kimmet ruled the party needed to take a standing vote. That ended in a 26-26 tie; Vanata cast three votes — his own and two proxy votes — in opposition. After a re-vote yielded another tie, Kimmet broke the deadlock, deciding that he would not put Vanata's appointment to a vote. "If you guys don't like this, by a two-thirds majority, you can get rid of me as chair," he said. "This is not an easy thing to do." As the meeting came to a close, there was some discussion about whether the party needed to vote to accept Boyer, Shirley and Lohrenz's resignations. Kimmet said he may bring it up at the party's next meeting. "We've got enough time wasted here," he said. In addition to Kimmet and Vanata, State Committeeman Charles Cloud — who missed Monday's meeting — remains on the party's executive committee.

FUTURE BRIGHT FOR NWC RODEO TEAMS

AFTER SOLID SHOWING AT NATIONAL FINALS, TRAPPERS WILL HAVE RETURNING TALENT

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

Though he was hoping for a little better finish for his men's team, Northwest College head rodeo coach Del Nose said he was pleased overall with last week's College National Finals Rodeo. The Trappers finished 15th in the nation out of 54 teams, and featured a runner-up in the men's All-Around in Caleb McMillan.

"Well, the rodeo was good, the kids tried hard," Nose said. "I think the freshmen got their eyes opened a little bit. We kept telling them that this stuff is going to be rank, they're gonna buck and you better have your 'A' game. Through trial and error, I think it finally set in."

'I think the freshmen got their eyes opened a little bit. We kept telling them that this stuff is going to be rank ...'

Head coach

The Trappers qualified six for the CNFR, including Caleb McMillan (all-around), Clancy Glenn (saddle bronc), Will Griffel (team roping), Colten Fisher (team roping), Justin Ketzenberg (bull riding) and Keaton Martz (bull riding and team roping).

McMillan was the top finisher for NWC, taking second in the All-Around; he was the only Trapper to advance to the short round, qualifying in bull riding. Had he completed his short round bull ride, he would have won the All-Around by a sizable margin.

"Caleb did all he could do, he bucked off his last bull to take second in the All-Around," Nose said. "He stays on the bull, he wins the All-Around hands down, he'd have won it by over 100 points. It kind of let the air out of his sails a little bit."

McMillan was ranked first in the nation going into the CNFR for the second straight year, and was the Big Sky Region champion. With one year of collegiate eligibility left, Nose is hoping McMillan will decide to return and give the CNFR one more shot.

The Powell High School track and field teams held their season-ending award ceremony last month, honoring the athletes that made it a very special season.

The Lady Panthers placed second as a team at the 2019 3A State Track and Field Meet in Casper, while the Panthers finished in third place. The two teams combined for seven state championships, including four individual championships and three relay titles.

At the awards ceremony, middle distance runner Jay Cox and sprinter/hurdler Sabrina Shoopman were named Outstanding State Meet Performers. Cox won gold in both the 400 and 800 meter runs, and also ran legs in two gold-medal winning relays, the 4x400 and 4x800. Shoopman won the championship in the 300 meter hurdles; she also placed fourth in the 400 and 100 meter dash and ran a leg on the 4x400 relay team, which also finished fourth.

Most Improved was awarded to senior Kaelan Groves and sophomore Emma Karhu. Groves medaled in two events at the state meet, including a sixth-place finish in the 100 meters and a seventh-place finish in the 200 meters. He also finished fifth as a member of the 4x100 relay team and took 12th in the pole vault. Karhu was part of the gold medal-winning 4x100 relay team and medaled in the 300 meter hurdles and the pole vault, taking third in both.

The Jim Miller Memorial for Distance Award went to Alan Merritt, Jayden Yates and Hailee Hyde. Merritt and Yates both ended their high school careers as state champions, each running a leg for the gold medal-winning 4x800 relay team. Individually, Merritt placed third in the 3200 meters and eighth in the 1600 meters. Yates finished seventh in the 3200 meters, eighth in the 800 meters and 10th in the 1600 meters. Hyde finished ninth at state as part of the 4x800 relay team and finished 13th in the high jump.

The Mitch Myrick Field Event Award went to Dylan Preator and Gabri Lundberg. Preator won two championships at this year's state meet, taking the top spot in the triple jump and running a leg in the gold medal-winning 4x400 relay. He also medaled in the 300 and 110 meter hurdles, placing sixth and eighth, respectively. Lundberg was third in the high jump.

Brody Karhu and Caitlyn Miner were given the LA Kohnke Most Deserving Award. Karhu won gold at state as part of the 4x400 relay team, and silver in the pole vault. He also medaled in the 200 and 400 meters, finishing fifth in both. Miner was part of the gold medal-winning 4x100 relay team.

HEART MOUNTAIN SOCCER

Heart Mountain U15 finish season on winning note

TEAM POSTS 5-7-1 RECORD, SECOND IN SNICKERS CUP

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

The Heart Mountain U15 soccer team had a busy but productive spring, competing in four tournaments throughout April and May.

Led by head coach Brian Orr, the U15 compiled a 5-7-1 record, highlighted by a second-place finish at the Snickers Cup in Sheridan. Heart Mountain lost in the championship game to Sheridan 8-1, but Orr said just advancing to the title game was a win for the team.

"We took second place in the U15 bracket with a mix of 13, 14 and 15-year-old kids, which is quite impressive," he said. "These kids are going to be the 'second wave' of players for the high school team, so getting exposure to playing teams much older will help down the road. We actually played our best game against Sheridan in the championship game, even though the score doesn't indicate it."

MAGIC CITY CLASSIC-BILLINGS

Heart Mountain opened the season April 27-28 at the Magic City Classic in Billings, posting a 2-1 record.

Against the Bozeman Blitz in the opening round, Heart Mountain squeaked out a 1-0 win, relying on a tenacious defense. Gunnar Erickson scored the gamewinner in the second half, while defenders Landon Hernandez, JT Prosser, Jacob Orr and Parker Williams kept Bozeman's scoring chances to a minimum.

"The defense was great all

REC DE PLAZA

Upcoming Rec De Plaza runs from 'Polecat to Yellowstone'

This year's Rec De Plaza features a revamped course with a one-way, 10K downhill thrill run and a shorter, less adventurous 5K.

The event is set for Saturday, June 29.

From a start line perched atop Polecat Bench that features breathtaking views of the Powell Valley below, the 10K course features a challenging descent. The route will lead runners off the bench and east on the dirt Lane 6 to a halfway aid station on Road 10.

Entrants can choose an abbreviated 5K option which starts at the halfway station.

The second 5K begins on Road 10's paved blacktop and heads south to Seventh Street. A left turn on Seventh takes participants to the finish line at Division Street, near Northwest College's Yellowstone Building.

Race day registration/check-in will run from 7-7:30 a.m. at Northwest College Yellowstone Building parking lot, on the corner of Seventh and Division streets. Bus transportation to the start line leaves at 7:30 a.m. The deadline for entries is this Friday to be guaranteed a T-shirt on Race-Day. The entry fee is $25 (including the shirt) with a $5 fee for a seat on the bus.

Entry forms are available at the Powell Recreation District, the Powell Tribune and the Powell Aquatic Center.

weekend," coach Orr said.

Goals came early and often in the second game against the Great Falls Rush, with Heart Mountain winning in a 10-0 rout. Goals were scored by Colton Brewer, Chance Franks, Erickson, Landon Hernandez, JT Prosser, Rivers Carrell and Trey Wambeke.

"It was a complete game, and all the players contributed," coach Orr said.

After posting back-to-back shutouts, Heart Mountain ran into an offensive buzzsaw against Billings United, losing 6-0 to the eventual champions.

"Size, speed and technical ability — they have it all," coach Orr said. "I'd be surprised if any Wyoming team could beat them, honestly."

One bright spot of the contest was the play of keeper Holden Cooper.

"Cooper, our goalie, was phenomenal," coach Orr said. "The score would have been a lot worse without him, stopping many through-ball attacks and several other chances."

SNICKERS CUP-SHERIDAN

Heart Mountain traveled to Sheridan May 4-5 for the Snickers Cup and advanced to the championship game. The team posted a 1-1-2 record for the tourney, with both losses coming against host Sheridan.

"Sheridan is a very good team and ended up only allowing one goal to us in the championship game," coach Orr said. "They are all eighth graders, so their physicality and speed was a factor."

Heart Mountain opened the tournament with a 2-1 win over the Riverton Rampage. Franks scored the first goal of the game off a cross by Erickson, and the score was 1-0 Heart Mountain at the break.

Riverton tied the game early in the second half, and the teams went back and forth with no score. A penalty in the Riverton box with eight minutes left gave Heart Mountain a penalty kick, which Erickson converted for the gamewinner. Orr praised his midfield — made up of Franks, Erickson, Parker Williams, Jordyn Dearcorn, Will Jackson, Wambeke and Prosser — for their solid play during the contest.

Heart Mountain came back to earth in the tourney's second game, a 6-0 loss

The Heart Mountain 15U soccer team had a successful spring season, highlighted by a second-place finish at the Snickers Cup in Sheridan last month. The team was coached by Brian Orr. Back: Holden Cooper; Middle: Aubree Fisher, Steven Stambaugh, Landon Hernandez, JT Prosser, JR Prosser, Logan Jensen, Trey Wambeke, Jordyn Dearcorn; Front: Andrew Moretti, Jacob Orr, Gunnar Erickson, Will Jackson, Parker Williams, Chance Franks. to the Sheridan Storm. Despite the loss, "I thought our defense was pretty good, given what we were going up against," coach Orr said.

Needing a win or a tie against the Gillette Edge for another crack at Sheridan, Heart Mountain got exactly that, battling to a 2-2 tie. Gillette took an early 1-0 lead, then Heart Mountain answered on a goal by Steven Stambaugh. Gillette scored again to take a 2-1 lead into the half, but Jacob Orr scored the equalizer on a 23-yard shot in the game's final two minutes. The goal propelled Heart Mountain into the championship game.

"Jacob's shot was amazing; we were going nuts," coach Orr said. "It was the difference between going to the championship or not."

He said Colton Brewer and Logan Jensen "played well on the backline," while Aubree Fisher "won some key balls along the sideline."

The excitement of advancing to the title game was tempered somewhat by the game itself, as Heart Mountain lost 8-1 to Sheridan.

Stambaugh accounted for Heart Mountain's lone goal off an assist by Jacob Orr, and his play at striker was a highlight.

"Steven [Stambaugh] would prefer to play defense but he is such a difference-maker with his speed and power," coach Orr said. "Every time he plays striker, good stuff happens. Rivers Carrell played hard too. JT Prosser and Landon Hernandez played hard on defense the entire time, all tournament. They deserve recognition for never giving up against Sheridan ..."

CODY SHOOTOUT

Heart Mountain got off to a slow start at the Cody Shootout May 11-12 but recovered to play well, finishing with a 1-2 record for the tournament.

"It was an up and down weekend," coach Orr said.

Heart Mountain opened the tourney with a 4-0 loss to Lander, with fatigue a possible factor.

"It was our third consecutive week of an 8 a.m. game on Saturday," he said. "We were just flat."

Heart Mountain rebounded in the second round, beating the Riverton Rampage 2-1.

"They answered the call after a tough first game and out-played a fresh team playing their first game on the day," coach Orr said.

The game was knotted at 0-0 at the half, but Riverton got on the board early in the second to take a 1-0 lead. Franks tied the game on a free kick by Jacob Orr; Stambaugh scored the gamewinner 15 minutes later on a Franks free kick over Riverton's back line.

The win set up another matchup with the Sheridan Storm. The Storm continued to show why they were one of the top teams in the state, jumping out to a quick 3-0 lead in the first 15 minutes.

"Our kids were flat and not winning the ball in the air," coach Orr explained.

In an effort to break Heart Mountain out of its funk, he decided to try something a little different.

"I told them, 'Hey, next kid to head the ball gets $5,'" he said. "Well, the kids responded and it became a game within the game. The kids, parents and referees were pointing out headers and it sort of sparked us."

Heart Mountain spoiled the shutout in the second half on a goal by Erickson, cutting the deficit to 3-1. That was as close as Heart Mountain would get, however, as the Storm netted one more goal and held on for a 4-1 win.

"We actually played them well after giving them three goals. It was a 1-1 game the rest of the way," coach Orr said. Kids who headed the ball during the game were Franks, Erickson, Andrew Moretti, Jacob Orr, Wambeke, Landon Hernandez, Will Jackson, Brewer and Prosser.

STATE CUP-CASPER

Heart Mountain ended its season at the State Cup in Casper May 25-26, posting a 1-2 record. The team got off to a rough start, losing back-to-back games to Gillette and Rock Springs by identical 4-0 scores.

But with the end of the season in sight, the U15 team dug deep to finish strong, beating Riverton 2-1.

"It was great to end the season on a high note with a win," coach Orr said. "All the kids contributed to the win."

Riverton took an early 1-0 lead, but Jacob Orr answered with a 26-yard shot to bring the game back to even. Erickson scored what ended up being the gamewinner 15 minutes later, chasing down a Jacob Orr free kick and knocking it to the far post for the score.

The game was a defensive battle after that, with neither team able to find the back of the net in the second half. Heart Mountain held on for the 2-1 win.

Parker Williams, Jacob Orr, Franks and Hernandez "played strong defense, as did Holden Cooper in goal," coach Orr said. "The rest of the kids played hard in the midfield and striker positions."

After the game, coach Orr praised his team for never giving up.

"We competed hard, but it was difficult to overcome the maturity that other teams had," he said. "When we were like other teams, we won those games; when teams were older than ours, we lost those games."

He told the players to keep their heads up and work hard "and we will be better next fall when our season gets going again."

'They answered the call after a tough first game and out-played a fresh team playing their first game on the day.'

CNFR: Coach Nose optimistic with next year's rodeo team

"We'll see what happens now," Nose said. "He's off and running rodeo now, so we just don't know quite for sure what he's thinking. We talked about it a bit before we came home. I told him he's only got one more chance to get to the college finals — you don't get to go back after that. I think he's pondering it, thinking about it."

The good news for Nose is that three of the other five CNFR qualifiers — Glenn, Ketzenberg and Martz — will be returning in the fall. After failing to complete a ride in his first two attempts at the CNFR, Glenn finally got on the board in the third go of saddle bronc, scoring a 66.5-point ride. He finished in 28th after failing to make the short round.

"I think this week made an impression on him. Ketzenberg and Martz, the same thing," Nose said of Glenn. "But the deal is with these guys is, they want it — they want it, they want it, they want it. They want to be competitive next year, so we're excited about that."

Two cowboys who won't be back are sophomores Griffel and Fisher, who also struggled in the first two rounds before getting on the board in their final run with a time of 5.6 seconds, good for 26th place.

"One missed one end one day, one missed the other day," Nose said. "But they made it 5.6 on their third round."

With both Griffel and Fisher graduating, "we'll miss them," he said.

Nose has already been recruiting for next season, and with a strong foundation of returners, he's confident the team will be able to pick up where it left off.

"I gotta be honest with you, we've got some tough kids coming in," he said. "Hopefully we can be as competitive next year as we were this last year. And I have a feeling these freshmen, who will be coming in as sophomores next year, are going to be great. It's starting to come together pretty good. We got the fire in the oven, and we're ready to go."

'I gotta be honest with you, we've got some tough kids coming in.'

Good Old Boys

WEEK 7, JUNE 11
GAME OF THE WEEK: TOTAL NET SCORE DIVIDED BY FOUR

The Good Old Boys golf league went into week seven with a game of total net score from four players, divided by four.

Steve Burtoft had a hole-in-one on No. 17, which he dedicated to his best friend Lynn Snell, who recently passed away.

In first place with a score of 69 was the team of Burtoft, Lloyd Snyder, Dave Bonner and Ken Rochlitz.

In second place was the team of Kevin Lineback, Buddy Rae, Dave Frost and Rhett Wolff. Third place went to Thom Seliga, Dennis McCollum, Bob Parsons and Ray Nelson.

In fourth place was the team of Jim Tobin, Jim Turk, Tom Bibbey and Clark Jeffs. Fifth place went to Jerry Linsdau, Paul Devoss, Jerry Scheaffer and Pete Pleban, while sixth place went to Larry Hedderman, James Caffro, Howard Whitlock and Mike Hernandez.

Bonner carded the only paying deuce on hole No. 4. Pleban had a deuce, but was not in the deuce pot. The low net score on the day was recorded by Dennis McCollum with a 63. The low gross was a 76, posted by Kevin Lineback.

Our way of life made possible by God

This past Sunday was Holy Trinity Sunday or we could say, God Sunday. This is the only Sunday in the church calendar that marks a concept, not a person or event. Three in one and one in three.

This is a day when we can ask all the "wh" questions. Who is God? Why does God exist? Where is God? What does God do for me? When did God come into being, and when will I meet God?

In the Lutheran Church, we have a doctrine that attempts to answer all of these questions, but there is actually no definitive answer. This is the day that we attempt to understand how God is in the world. To make our best effort to give words to our experiences of God in our lives and in the lives of others.

In John 16:12 we read, "I still have many things to say to you, but you cannot bear them now."

Maybe this is the heart of the Trinity. A heart that knows that as much as we try, the Trinity will never be easy and no matter how many times Jesus answers his disciples' question about what is going to happen when he leaves them, the mystery will remain. It is simply more than the disciples or we can comprehend. A heart that knows that even our most earnest attempts can never fully explain the Trinity. A heart that knows how much we need to be reminded of our failures and frailty when it comes to even adequate expressions of who God is.

When we speak of God, we should speak of love, tenderness, compassion, mercy, and forgiveness because God is all these things. The only way we are going to be able to bear what is to come will depend on our faith in an unexplainable presence and power of God known as parent and creator, as the word made flesh, and as our life-giving breath.

The Spirit of Truth (also known as Advocate, Holy Ghost, Friend, Companion, etc.) will guide us in all truths, will speak the words heard from God, will proclaim to us what is to come, and will glorify Jesus.

The spirit will gently guide us to truth in the future, our friend will give us the words that we need to hear at that moment. The word will fit the needs of our community. The words will reflect how the world has changed and how we need to change with it.

Have you ever been around someone who will argue a point by saying, "Well the Bible says ..." The majority of the times that I have heard this statement is when someone is attempting to alienate others from the community of God. What we need to be doing when we attempt to interpret the Bible into our own words, is remember what God has commanded us to love. To live a life lived in faith and acted out in love. In Romans, Paul tells us that with God there is peace, love, and hope.

The Trinity is our way of life made possible by God! Both the known and the unknown. Maybe we should consider spending a little less time thinking about those "wh" questions, and experience a lot more of God as God speaks God's divine wisdom to the Holy Spirit, who knows just the right time to entrust this divine wisdom onto us.

Amen!

(Donna Putney is the pastor of Hope Lutheran Church in Powell.)

School board recognizes six retiring employees

BY TESSA BAKER
Tribune Features Editor

The summer season marks a new chapter for several Powell school employees as they begin retirement.

The Park County School District No. 1 Board of Trustees recognized six retiring employees who have a combined 173 years of service to the district.

The following retirees were recognized in May:

Laurie Zwemer, 34 Years
Laurie Smith, 31 Years
Jocelyn Frame, 25 Years

"These three that are retiring out of Parkside are leaving a big hole, with combined experience of 90 years," Board Chairman Greg Borchert noted during last month's meeting.

Parkside Elementary School Principal Jason Hillman said the three employees — Laurie Zwemer, Jocelyn Frame and Laurie Smith — have influenced an entire generation of kids in Powell.

Hillman said all three have really big hearts and show kindness to everyone in the building.

"They're good people," he said. "... Our culture at Parkside is going to have to rebuild without those three, because they're such kind ladies."

Hillman also described them as hard workers.

"It's uncanny, but if you ever go to Parkside, one of them is there. One of them is holding down the fort," Hillman said, whether it's the weekend or an evening.

He described fourth-grade teacher Jocelyn Frame as humble with a great sense of humor.

"When things aren't going exactly the way we want it to go, she's able to laugh and lighten it up a little bit," Hillman said.

He said he also appreciates her humility. When Frame does something great, she deflects the compliments.

Frame is also able to navigate the stressful situations.

"She always has a friendly hello," he said. "And she says it in a certain way that sticks with you."

Speaking about special education teacher Laurie Smith, Hillman said she cares a lot about kids.

"In fact, at Parkside, you will very rarely see her by herself," he said, adding that she's with kids whether she's in the classroom or walking down the hallway.

"She's always working with kids, always caring for kids," Hillman said.

He said he admires how Smith takes real ownership of her kids. As Parkside figured out testing arrangements during the school year, Hillman suggested they could split up Smith's students and he could take some of her kids.

"She didn't say much, but I could read her body language that that wasn't going to happen," he said.

Smith cares for all kids, he said.

"She seems to have a big heart for the kids who need the biggest heart," he said.

Second-grade teacher Laurie Zwemer's passion for teaching and kids also stands out, Hillman said.

"She's a teacher that kids absolutely love," he said. "... and those kids know that she loves them."

Zwemer is always prepared, he said, and her students make great growth.

"I'm not joking about this at all — I don't know when Laurie sleeps," Hillman said.

He described Zwemer as a "huge caregiver, in every aspect of what she does."

That's evident in the way she works with her students and at team meetings, especially when there's a new employee, he said.

"She's going to make sure they have everything they need to be successful," Hillman said. "We're really going to miss that leadership."

He said Zwemer is one of the kindest people he knows.

"Laurie goes the extra mile for everyone," Hillman said, adding that includes his own family, as Zwemer sent them cards when they were going through difficult times.

Zwemer said it's been a blessing to work at Parkside, and each retiring teacher thanked the district.

Hillman said he knows that the three are "truly going to be missed."

GLORIA RANDALL, 37 YEARS

In her 37 years as an accountant for the Powell school district, Gloria Randall has been known as a hard-working, quiet and dedicated employee.

"She does her job very, very well," said Mary Jo Lewis, business services coordinator.

With the district's payroll, "I will put her against anyone in the state for getting it done and getting it done properly," Lewis said.

Randall isn't an attention-getter and faithfully shows up for work, Lewis added.

"When Gloria takes time off, she takes it off to support her family," she said. "She does things for her kids."

Randall also is funny and has nerves of steel, Lewis said. Outside of work, she has branched out into new interests, including beekeeping. Randall also enters baked goods and sugar beets in the Park County Fair.

As an employee, Randall is loyal and doesn't like the spotlight, Lewis said.

"What I'd like to do is recognize her as one of our most outstanding employees," she said, adding, "we're going to miss her."

DEB ECKHARDT, 30 YEARS

As the district's food service director for the past 30 years, Deb Eckhardt made sure that "our kids are well-fed [and] they're loved," Lewis said.

She also makes sure things are done right and is "highly respected" in the state and by her staff, Lewis said.

"We have school districts come to our school to find out how our food service program is run," Lewis said.

She also has ensured co-workers were well fed.

"I've been at the middle school for seven years, and I haven't missed a meal," said Principal Kyle Rohrer. "Deb takes care of us. It's great food."

He described Eckhardt as "an extremely hard worker" and said she also has a good sense of humor.

Eckhardt makes time with her family a priority and also volunteers in the community.

"I think that's reflective of the kind of person she is," Lewis said. Eckhardt doesn't like the lime-light focused on her, she added.

As the district searched for a new food service director, Eckhardt "made a commitment that she would never leave us in a lurch. She was going to take care of us," Lewis said.

Eckhardt thanked the school district for all of their support.

"I know there's a lot of schools that don't get that, but we do," she said.

LAURA RILEY, 16 YEARS

Laura Riley started in September 2003, as the administrative assistant at Westside Elementary School for former principal Brent Walker.

She then transferred to the administrative assistant in the district's technology department for the 2 1/2 years before her retirement.

"Laura was always helpful to staff and students alike. When she moved from Westside she deeply missed the kids and the kids missed her," said Joyce Ruward, the executive administrative assistant. "She was kind to everyone, always had snacks and candy on her desk, and randomly sent fun little thank you's to co-workers."

(Editor's note: The district also recognized two other longtime employees, Ken George and Sudie Thormahlen, whose retirements were announced after the May school board meeting. They'll be featured in a future Tribune story.)

QUILT GUILD

Program Monday in Cody

The Paintbrush Piecers Quilt Guild will meet at 6 p.m. Monday at the Cody Senior Center.

"The program this month will be a few demonstrations by guild members, making a bag out of two fat quarters, different simple baskets and more," said Marybeth Richardson with the guild. Terri Lange of Cody will demonstrate how to use a jelly roll pan to make a table mat.

The program will follow a short business meeting. Guests are always welcome at the guild's meetings. Everyone is encouraged to bring something to share during a show and tell. For information, contact Richardson at 307-754-5399.
